Socialist Worker

For a Workers' Republic and International Socialism 40p

Inside:

Crunch time at TEAM PAGE 5 Nigeria's general strike PAGE 4

Give TEAM workers their jobs back

SACK THIS CORRUPT GOVERNMENT

Goodman's tax fraud covered up -see centre pages

Third level fees

It's about time scrapped were

WHEN Minister for Education Niamh Breathnach pro-posed to abolish university fees, the press and opposition politicians said that this country couldn't afford it.

But getting rid of fees would cost no more than fifteen or twenty million pounds a year, a percentage of Goodman's tax frauds

And it would make it easier for working class parents to provide a decent education and better prospects for their kids.

But even if fees are abolished, maintenance is still the real barrier to third level education for most people.

Students on a full grant are expected to live on £35 a week, when the average rent in Dublin is £35 to

Even this lousy assistance is denied to many through the ridiculously low grant threshold limits which hit PAYE workers

Any family with a gross income of over £15,000 is exempt from grant assist-

For equal access to third level education to become anything more than politi-cal propaganda, abolishing fees will be only one very small step.

Stagg presides housing crisis

How Irish firms are damaging your health

Making pr polition

DOZENS of companies in Ireland are being investigated by the European Commis-

RINGSPND

A PRIVATE company is trying to build an in-cinerator in Ringsend, one of Dublin's major cinerator in Ringsend, one of Dublin's major residential areas.

The incinerator is supposed to burn hospital waste. This will include human and animal tissue, pharmaceutical products and hospital dressings.

Bord Pleanala gave the go ahead for the scheme three years ago.

But already big opposition is building up. An attempt to set up a similar plant in Dolphin's Barn a year ago failed after a local campaign drove the private company out.

At a big public meeting in Ringsend Rualri Quinn sent along a representative who talked a lot of concerned waffle.

But if this plant is to be stopped people in Ringsend are going to have to take to the streets and mount a similar campaign to that in Dolphin's Barn.

sion for breaking pollution laws.
Several factories in the Cork Harbour area are being investigated over air

Cork Harbour area are being investigated over air

Smithkline Beecham.
The SFADCO Industrial Estate is being checked out for spilling dangerous metals and chemicals into the Shannon Estuary.

ford pet food factory, C & D Foods Ltd has emitted up to 160 times the efflu-ent allowed under its pol-lution lisence into a tribu-tary of the Shannon.

Offence

The local county coun-The local county council gave figures to Greenpeace showing that the factory had breached the terms of the licence 38 times during 1993.

Breaching the terms of a pollution licence can lead to a £1,000 fine or a six month sentence.

But there is no sign of Unde Albert being marched off to Mountjoy iail for the offence jail for the offence.

But big companies usu-ally get away with a mild slap on the wrist for endangering the environ-

That was the most Hickson and ADM got af-ter the fires at their chemical plants in Cork Harbour last year.
After all, the courts

don't want to eat into the huge profits the fat cats make from putting peo-ple's lives at risk.

IRELAND's favour-ite son Michael Smurfit has been causing a bit of a stink Stateside.

Smurfit faces criminal charges.

criminal charges and a £32 million fine because of pollution in two states. His plant in Florida has been polluting local rivers and he failed to clean up after closing a factory in Ohio.

tion The recent rise in Corpo ration rents in Dublin means that evictions

EMMET Stagg, as Minister for Hous-ing, is proud of the fact that 3,500 new houses have been started or bought this year.

He could hardly have done worse than the last government. Between 1987 and 1991, £1bn was cut from Local Authority Housing.

In one year, 1989, only 768 local authority houses were built with just one being built in Cork, and six in

The one bright spot was the Co. Mayo constituency of the Minister for the Environment at the time

vironment at the time, Padraig Flynn where 52 houses were built.

The new spending on housing is welcome, but it shouldn't hide the fact that

Stagg is presiding over a housing scandal.

Officially 2,667 adults were homeless in 1993. But Streetwise estimate that over 80,000 individuals are in need of housing.

Owen O'Sullivan from Streetwise says about the new housing that "it is a drop in the ocean compared to what's needed".

Although Stagg has claimed that no one need spend a night on the street the reality is that they do and in increasing numbers.
Those most likely to end up on the streets are 16-25 year olds who have no chance of getting state housing.

Paul, a homeless 20 year old, found that "many hos-tels are full by 3pm each day. Some nostels are in-fested with lice, have little privacy and terrible facili-

Hundreds of young peo-ple are put into Bed and Breakfast accommodation by the Health Boards. In Dublin there are 427 homeless children, 76 of whom are in B+Bs, 29 in hospitals and 3 in a Garda sta-

Dublin.

will increases.
The myth in Ireland is that homelessness is not a great problem. The reality is the opposite and likely to worsen despite the claims of the government.

NO

SPILLAGE AT SHORTS

WORKER at Shorts aircraft fac-tory in Belfast told Socialist Worker that the chemical spillage at the plant in August was not the first one.

The leak of Hydrogen Sulphide gas left 41 workers injured—three seri-ously—and 450 had to be evacuated.

But the worker we spoke to said: "It's happened a few times before and each time the management kept it quiet.

"The shop stewards only found out about these incidents when journalists gave them the story."

ert's ric

MANY workers will not have a holiday this year but Albert Reynolds has been having the holiday of a lifetime on our behalf.

He spent it in the Mediterranean on board the yacht Paraiso—Spanish for paradise—owned by his Mexican pal Romulo C'Farrill.

O'Farrill is a sort of Mexican Tony O'Reilly. He is the head of Grupo Piramide SA, a huge news-paper and magazine em-

He also owns six vehicle of two banks and the Telephone company and is involved in paper producing o'Farrill's politics are right up Reynolds' street—he is an enthusiastic backer of the Institutional Revolutionary Party, Mexico's antonary Party, Mexico's answer to Fianna Fail.

One Fianna Fail minister has been reported as saying "they're just like us—a family. You can fall out but never leave.

"They've held on to power for 65 tears and they're done it each time.

they've done it each time through elections too."

But the PRI have a his-

January of this year they sent in troops to put down an uprising by poor peasants in the province of

Bloodstained

At the time Albert Rey-nolds was in Mexico shak-ing the bloodstained hands of government ministers and staying in O'Farrill's holiday home.
O'Farrill owns the English language paper News. His son runs the paper and attends board meetings carrying a pistol!

But O'Farrill is not exactly a fan of press free-sacked the editor of the News for criticising the government;

banned all political coverage for a time to avoid publishing articles questioning PRI policies and demanded that his editorial board take an oath of allegiance to the Party. allegiance to the Party— upon which they all re-

But who are we to criticise the Taoiseach's choice signed.

cise the laoiseach's choice of company? After all it's probably in the "national interest" for Albert to hang out with Mexican multi-million-

JUSTICE

THE Incorporated Law Society regulates the activities of solicitors.

But it has no interest in justice for its own in justice for its own workers.

It is refusing to pay the two per cent wage increase due to law clerks. The Society says it has no money.
But these hypocrites have just spent £4,500 on a bathroom for their director general. They also splashed out £5,000 on a garden party.

party.
And just to make sure that everything was spick and span they spent £15,000 on the

HE PRICE OF

THE Labour Party have played a disgusting role since the publication of the Beef Tribunal.

Instead of hanging Reynolds out to dry, Spring has assured Fianna Fail that the Coalition will survive.

They have even gone along with the Revenue Commissioners decision to give Goodman a tax am-

This is a far cry from the Labour Party that won a record number of seats at the last general election. Those were the days when Spring denounced the golden circle who were ripping off workers

Now Spring stands with Reynolds when he is caught selling off passports and squandering £100 million in Export Credit Imnsurance to his former friend, Larry Goodman.

This is the price Labour pays for its policies of partnership. Anyone who tries to manage capitalism in Ireland has to put up with the corruption and graft which FF wallows

The Labour Party's attitude to workers is the opposite. The more they cosy up to Reynolds, the more they stick the book into their own supporters.

Labour Ministers are orchestrating the attacks on semi-state workers alongside FFers.

They put in hitmen like John Behan into TEAM and Leslie Buckley into Irish Steel because they hjad a record of slashing 2,600 jobs between them.

Neither the Labour Party or FF would get away with what they are doing at the moment if it were not for the union leaders.

Tragically, the political coalition between FF and Labour is matched by an industrial coalition between the ICTU and this government.

Labour Party supporters in the unions like Peter Cassells of the ICTU and Billy Atlee of SIPTU are working flat out to break the growing resistance to this rotten govern-

Annyous ICTU spokesperson claim to be worried and angered' by the TEAM shop stewards. Instead of lifting a finger in tersm of delivering solidarity they have sabotaged every effort to win wider support for the TEAM workers.

This is the real price that has to be paid for the type of 'social part-nership' policies the unions have played with FF for the last seven

But we can fight back and build a rank and file opposition to to this rotten partnership.

The key is the TEAM dispute. A victory for the TEAM workesr will make every public sector worker walk tall.

That is why we urge readesr of this paper should be making collections for the TEAM workers.

Approach your shop stewards and ask for a regular levy.

* Get on the streets with the leaflets from the TEAM workers with a

£8,000

£7,000

£6,000

£5,000

£4,000

£3.000

£2,000

£1,000

£0

Socialist Morker Worker WORKERS HIT BACK Spread the Action

THE CAMPAIGN of local councils in to privatisation. Dublin to get people to pay their water charges has been a failure.

Despite offers of discounts and raffles a very high proportion of people have refused to population were not people have refused to

Fingal Council in North Dublin sent out 41,000 bills but only got a quarter of people to pay. The Dublin Campaign against Water Charges claimed that between 60 paying bills.

First Step

They warned that if the corporation get away with water charges it will only be the first step Copies are available from PO Box 1648 Dublin 8.

"In Britain, privatisation has meant that people's water is metered and they are paying up to £400 a year".

■The campaign has produced a new fact sheet on the water charges.

NOW RESIST THE RENT RISES

"They are hoping to get us to accept the prin-ciple now for a new sys-

"In four years time the maximum rent on a two bedroom flat could go from £22.10 a week to Exhorbitant

"A single bedsit could rise from £11 a week to £43 a week.

"These are exhorbitant

rents which people can-

WHILE councils in Co Dublin are pushing water charges, in Dublin Corporation have fixed on another way to squeeze more out of tenants—sharp rent rises.

At the moment the Corporation are looking for a £1.50 increase from each income earning member of the family.

This means that old age pensioners will have

But this is only the start. The Corporation are abolishing the old minimum rent and the graded scale

This means that groups like single parents face huge hikes of £9.33.

These rises are part of a wider scheme to push up rents to an astronomical level.

As Matt Larkin, from the National Association of Tenants Organisations

not afford to pay."

NATO are calling on tenants to offer their old rents to the corporation and to refuse to pay the new increases.

Over 80% of those in Corporation houses are on on some form of social welfare.

These vicious rent rise are a way of making working class people pay for the squandering of money on the Irish rich.

A huge campaign of non-payment can force the Corporation managers to back off.

As Matt Larkin put it, "If enough people refuse to pay these increases we can get the high and mightly to back off"

Socialist Worker ppeal reaches

THE APPEAL to fund a fortnightly Socialist Worker had raised £3,115 by the end of August.

We would like to thank to all our supporters and readers who helped us get off to a good start.

Our target is to raise £10,000 by the end of December.
That will help us to buy the equipment needed to start producing Socialist Worker once a fort-

Up to now the paper has only appeared on a monthly basis. This has to change.

Most of the rest of the press is controlled by big tycoons who put over the bosses' side of the story.

One man, Tony O'Reilly, owns a third of all the Irish newspapers. He earns £70,000 a day and uses his papers to put across right wing ideas. Thousands of peo-ple are looking for real answers.

They know that capitalism is not working. But many are not yet sure what socialism

"I am happy to see Socialist Worker go fortnightly. I think we need a variety of socialist debate as never before. Socialist worker makes an important contribution. I hope that the appeal succeeds"—Mick O'Reilly, ATGWU, (personai capacity)

Socialist Workers

Movement

Dublin South

is really about.
To win over the thousands who feel like this and to bring them together into a fighting as in the second fighting socialist organisation, we need a more regular paper.

That is why we appeal to all our readers to give as generously as possible. We need every donation no matter how small. Send your money in now and help us build.

lelp us raise E10,000 for a fortnightly ocialist Worker

Rwanda bled dry by Western

OUR television screens are filled with heart-rending pictures of refugees dy-ing on the borders of Rwanda.

The only explanation offered is that of "tribalism" gone mad in yet another

African country. But we hear very little about the way west-ern banks are bleeding Rwanda dry, even in the midst of the present hor-

Rwanda owes western banks and governments £550 million.

Owe

This is a small sum relative to what many other governments and big companies owe.

But it is equivalent to more than half of everything produced in the country in a year and four times the total spent on health and education in Rwanda in 1992.

Debts

Every month the new Rwandan government is expected to pay £6 million in interest on debts government was in of-fice. owed since the previous

The banks make huge amounts on Third World debt. British banks alone have pocketed over £40 billion in interest payments from Third World debt since 1979.

ment has given £3,000 million on tax relief to claim they will not get back their loans from Barclays' profits for one day would buy enough medical kits to save two million people from cholera.

The war in Rwanda is not the result of innate "tribalism" -at root that is a racist lie.

The slaughter is caused by poverty which sets people against one another, and western banks and governments are very much to blame for that poverty.

Fears

France's intervention has only increased the fears of ordinary people that more genocide is on the way—thousands of refugees are likely to flee the French "safe ha-vens".

Western governments and their rich backers are not part of the solution in Rwanda—they are part of the problem.

NIGERIA: OIL WORKERS SHOW ROAD TO CHANGE

IN CONTRAST to the TV images of helpless Rwandans dependent on western aid, the ac-tions of Nigerian oil workers show how liberation can be achieved in Af-

Several months ago, the country had its first free election in years.

It was won by a man named Abiola who then proclaimed himself President.

However the ruling military junta declared the election null and void. Abiola was arrested on charges of treason for his proclamation.

His trial started in August.

Thousands workers in Nigeria's oil industry, which is central to the country's economy, went on strike in protest.

The strike led to pitched street battles between strikers and riot police.

Barricades were erected in many working class areas.

The strike was broadened to include civil servants and other workers.

Explosion

Faced with this explosion of working class anger, Nigeria's congress of trade unions were pushed into calling a three-day general strike.

This action forced the military into announcing it would hold an inquiry into the running of the election. The trade union leaders then called for a return to

The oil workers union refused to go back until Abiola was released and in-stalled as President. They called for other workers to resume

The strike shows how the general situation in Africa can be changed.

In Nigeria, South Africa and many other African coun-tries, a large working class is growing.

When this class applies its industrial muscle, it has the power to win its demands.

The pro-democracy strike in Nigeria is an example of workers using their strength for political demands beyond wages and conditions.

It is this strength which can rid Africa of its legacy of colo-nialism and capital-

Blair: The Labo leader the

"I COULD even imagine myself supporting the British Labour leader Tony Blair." Rupert Murdoch, owner of the Sun and the Times.

Rupert Murdoch, is one of the worst enemies of the working class

His newspapers attacked every striker and demonstrator throughout the Thatcher years.

He is the man responsible for at-tempting to break the print unions, by setting up his new plant in Wapping.

When someone like him can consider backing Labour then something must be seriously wrong with the

Tony Blair, the new Labour Party leader, is out to win the backing of business and the British establish-

He dines with army officers, and received £5,000 for his leadership campaign from top boss, Sainsbury. His argument is that this is the only way to oust the Tories.

In a pamphlet called "Socialism" he explains that it is old fashioned to

In a painpilet called "Socialism" he explains that it is old fashioned to argue that we live "in an irredeemably exploitative market system".

Instead he says, bosses and workers should form a partnership.

That way it will be possible "to run a Tory economy, with a bit of social compassion."

Blair is wrong. Bosses in Britain like the world over, are out to hold down wages, sack workers and increase productivity.

When workers resist this by striking or demonstrating, then Socialists should have no hesitation in supporting them. But Blair's position is to avoid taking sides.

Witness the role of Labour in the current rail workers dispute.

The Labour leaders, including John

Prescott an MP sponsored by the signal workers union, have said nothing to help the strikers.

Nor is Labour associating itself with the huge opposition to the Criminal Justice Bill. Instead Blair boasts that he is responsible for some of the ideas in the Bill.

Accepting

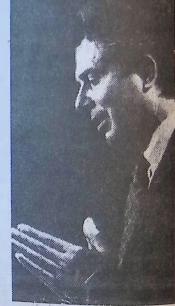

Accepting the Tory economy has meant Labour accepting many Tery ideas.

For example, the Tories have scapegoated single parents as a way of hiding their cuts housing and childcare.

Instead of exposing this, the Labour leaders have taken up the argument.
In a recent speech Tony Blair attacked single mothers, saying "I do

"LABOUR now has a young intelligent, attractive leader. Interested in crime and even Interested in crime and even welfare dependency it would be hard to slip a cigarette paper between his views and those of many Tories."—Daily Mail

"MR. BLAIR has shown himself a believer in the Market economy, in not penalising wealth, in restoring discipline and standards in education."—The Times not think it is a helpful way to bring up children. I disagree with what they have done."

All this echoing of the Tories might have won Labour the support of some members of the ruling class, but at what cost?

In terms of beating the Tories at the next election, it is a risky strategy. They lost the last election by playing the same game.

the same game. In particular they refused to build on the massive anger against the Poli

For millions of working class peo-ple wanting change in Britain, the current Labour leadership is a disaster.

The real price of Murdoch's support is that Labour leaders now stand for policies beauty different from the for policies hardly different from the

That's why our sister paper in Britain, Socialist Worker says:

"The argument for a real socialist organisation—to fight against the like of Murdoch—could not be clearer."

TEAM AER LINGUS

Crunch time approachi

THE dispute at TEAM Aer Lingus is coming to a crunch.

Management are doing everything to pretend there is no work at TEAM to justify their lock out of workers.

In the middle of August, the top manager John Behan announced the loss of the ten million pound Virgin contract to the Dutch firm KLM as a result of the ongoing dis-

But Behan was exposed oon afterwards when Virsoon afterwards when gin claimed that they had only moved their contract temporarily and that they had been advised to do so by TEAM!

It's not the first time they have tried such tactics.

Basic checking and maintenance of planes has been sent to Shannon Aerospace and British Airways to fuel management's lie that there's no work left.

Propaganda

Another TEAM worker said, "Behan's just a hatchet man brought in to put black propaganda about us in the

"He tells the media how heartbroken he is to see peo-ple's holidays disrupted.
"Bit the most anyone's been delayed is twenty min-

"If you read the papers you'd think that we were deliberately out to wreck people's holidays!"

A wife of one sacked worker adds, "The people affected by the protests can go away on holiday and forget about it.

But we can't forget about it, we have to live with it. The only reason why people are talking about it is because of the protests."

TEAM managers have talked time and time again about the need to stop protesting and sit down and talk. testing and sit down and talk. But TEAM workers say that "during the talks chaired by the ICTU, management had no intention of talking. They just want to destroy our mo-rale so we swallow every bit of their productivity deal."

'We're fighters-not victims'—Team Mates

THE WIVES and partners of sacked TEAM workers have set up an organisation called "TEAM Mates" to support those involved in the dispute.

At the founding meeting speakers made it clear that they were totally opposed to the 48 hour week and wage cuts.

They argued that skilled workers should be paid a decent wage and not have their work devalued.

Many of the women were Workers are well aware of what would happen if they buckled down now.

dispute at Irish Steel a deal was rammed down the throats of craft workers the bosses are brought in Alex

This is the natchet man who has a long history of attacking workers in companies like B+1.

One TEAM worker also pointed to CIE, where "Bob Montropers", pushed

Montgomery pushed through a deal two years ago, through a deal two years ago, and now they're talking about privatising the company. If you give them an inch then they take a mile."

TEAM workers know that they are not just fighting

they are not just fighting

If management manage to break agreements on the 40 hour week and cut pay, then their own battle.

This is the hatchet man pushed

After the recent similar concerned about the put down stories about TEAM workers coming from the media. A wife of a sacked worker

"They say all this stuff in the papers about how TEAM staff are well paid and so on—but we haven't been on a yearly holi-day in Ireland, let alone abroad, for five years because we've got two kids and we just can't afford it."

Another said she was dis-gusted with the government. "It is a disgrace. They spend £35 million on the Beef Tribunal --but it would only take £25 mil-lion to save all the jobs at TEAM".

TEAM".

TEAM-mates asked Mary Robinson to meet them when she was flying out to the airport and she agreed.

Now they are planning a picket of a meeting of Labour Party TDs.

As one of the women put it, "We see curselves as fighters, not victims".

not victims

THREE hatchetmen are involved in the attempt to carve up TEAM workers. ■ Donnacha Hurley has been brought in from the world of high finance.
■ John 'Jelly Bean' Behan is supposed

THE GOLDEN CIRCLE A NEW golden circle is starting up among the hatchet men of Irish industry.

the hatchet men of Irish inclustry.

Pat Dineen who attacked the wages and conditions of Irish Steel workers is the owner of an insurance company, Sedgewick Dineen Insurance.

This company has just be awarded a contract to insure the new A3 30 Airbus. The contract involves a multi-million pound deal.

Which proves that if you scratch your workers backs, there is a nice little present in the kitty for to be in charge of 'Human Resources'. ■ Bernie Cahill drew up the plans for cuts back on the whole airport. Cahill and Hurley live beside each other in

They commute by helicopter to work.

Cahill stays overnight in the Westbury Hotel where he pays out £300 a night to use such facilities as a jacuzzi.

Let Go

For every night Cahill gave up these lit-tle privileges, he could pay the weekly wage of two of the apprentices he has let go before their final exams.

All three hatchet menare on 'consultancy rates' of pay.

This means that get over the norm for top civil servants. They earn at least £1,000 a

DESPITE the media attacks, there is a massive sympathy with the TEAM work-

The Coalition government is deeply unpopular.

They spent £35 million on the Beef Tribunal which would never have been needed if Reynolds gave a few

WHEN the Public

Order Act was passed by the Dáil last year, the claimed it would not be used against trade un-

They were lying. TEAM workers have already been threat-ened with this vicious act which gives the Gardaí unlimited powers to break up pro

Mary Harney, the Progressive Democrat leader said it was nec essary to deal with strikes.

Terrified

This is just what the

Gardaí are now threat-

But one shop stew-ard summed up situa-

"The police told us that they could use the Public Order Bill

"But they are also terrified of actually

"They know that if they're locked up one TEAM worker; the whole airport would close down immedi-

tion accurately:

against us.

using it.

ening.

Labour

ionists.

Party

straight and honest answers in the Dail. That money could have been better spent in building a thriving aircraft maintenance industry.

The way to wir is for TEAM Workers to rely on their own strength.

So far the union leaders have played a disgraceful role.

They have worked behind the scenes to prevent any national stoppage in solidarity with TEAM.

They will new try to push a deal down the throats of the TEAM workers just as they did at Irish Steel.

What is needed now is escalation. September is the start of the busy season for aircraft maintenance.

Management have thrown everything they have at the workers.

It is now time to hit back hard.

This means working to bring the whole airport to a halt

Already other groups there are spoiling for a fight. Air stewards, baggage handlers, can-teen staff have all voted individual for strike action.

Pickets by TEAM workers on the air-port could be the start of a major fight back against the Cahill plan.

state sector will come under

And as one TEAM worker puts it, 'T've already been sacked, so I've got nothing to lose!

"But I've got everything to gain—I can get my job back and protect the other semi-states as well."

the same sort of attacks.

HOW can workers trust Behan and Cahill. Last February they reached an agreement with TEAM management.

Workers agreed to make savings and the management accepted that they could

■Cahill then make a go of the company.

But within 48 hours they came back and scrapped the deal. What is to stop them pulling the same trick again?

■Behan

Refugees face racist refusals

IRELAND's immigration policy is designed to help the rich.

Two executives of the BCCI bank which collapsed after it was discovered to be engaged in fraud and laundering money from criminals have been granted Irish passports.

The reason: they had a million quid between them

But many refugees who have fled torture and threat of execution are being turned away because they are poor.

The Department of Justice have been telling more than hundred political refugees a year hear that they and their families are one design allowed to stay in Ireland.

One immigration lawyer, who says he has people "coming to me every day of the week who have had their applications refused", has accused the Department of "refusing people left, right and centre who comply with all of the requirements laid down by Section 15 of the 1956 Irish Nationality and Citizenship Act, with out even having to give reasons for these decisions".

Under the 1956 Act the Minister for Justice has sole discretion in deciding whether or not to grant citizenship.

This has led to the situation where hundreds of Thais, Malaysians In his has led to the situation where hundreds of I hats, Halaysians and Chinese, who all fulfilled the legal requirements for naturalisation (being of full age and "good character" and resident in the state for four years prior to applying) have been rejected. Non whites or non EU "ordinary" applicants are often forced to wait anything from eighteen months to three years before hearing the results of their applications.

Between 1987 and 1992 all but three and a half percent of cases were turned down.

cases were turned down.

No African or Asian has ever won the honour of Irish citizen-ship. A policy of official racism is operating behind closed doors. In each and every case no explanation is given, no reason, no

There is no current right to appeal, just three months to get out of the country.

The Irish Refugee Council puts the number of illegal immigrants here at ten thousand.

Some of these "illegals" have lived here for up to fourteen years and have raised families.

Others who enter the country seeking refugee status or political asylum are deported within hours of arrival.

In 1992, a group of Kurdish refuges who got as far as the duty free shop in Shannon were forcibly removed by the Gardaí and put back on a plane.

Turned Down

Libyan and Chinese nationals seeking entry on humanitarian grounds have spent over a year in Mountjoy Prison waiting for their applications to be processed before being turned down. In January of this year two Croatian women, forced to flee the regime in their own country, were visited by Gardaí and told that they must leave immediately or face deportation.

Due to intense campaigning from groups like Amnesty and the Irish Refugee Council and harsh criticism from the UNHCR, the Irish government has had to move.

In June Minister Geoghegan-Quinn introduced legislation which would place refugee applications in the hands of an independent tribunal, create a statutory basis for decision-making and grant the right of appeal.

the right of appeal.
Sounds good, but is it? No.

Sounds good, but is it? No.

When set against the European background, this new legislation appears little more than a red herring.

It's not exactly an achievement they can boast of, but our European politicians have been remarkably successful in building a "fortress Europe".

"fortress Europe".

In 1992 Europe got 700,000 requests for asylum. Since then the welcome signs have been taken down.

By June of this year applications had dropped by two-thirds. How? The EU has long had an objective to create a common policy on asylum and immigration.

Through inter-governmental agreements—like the Draft Convention on the Crossing of External Borders—it's created one. It's simple and clean: if you're foreign and poor, keep out.

The new European convention places controls at external hor-

The new European convention places controls at external borders of member states and forces employees of transport companies to act as Europolice by imposing sanctions on companies who carry passengers without adequate documentation.

Border controls ensure that many prospective refugees won't even manage to get a foot in the door, let alone apply for asylum. Carrier sanctions have already led to tragedy.

In 1992 a French shipping crew discovered seven stowaways on hoard.

Fearing dismissal if the company got fined, the crew knocked the seven unconscious and threw them overboard. Six drowned. In 1989 three Kurdish asylum seekers were returned to Tur-key, where they were severely tortured for 37 days. British airline staff had prevented them from leaving a plane at

A recently adopted EU resolution on "manifestly unfounded applications", or MUAs, establishes the criteria by which a country is deemed "safe".

Any claims for asylum from these countries are deemed spuri-ous and the applicant is a chancer who can be quickly ejected. Under this pretty piece of legislation the more Afghan appli-cants rejected, for example, the safer Afghanistan will be assumed

BEEF TRIBUNAL SHOWS eaw offeri

Who goes to jail

THE O'Brien family parked a caravan on a piece of late at the Murrough, Co Wicklow. They were jailed for thre days in Mountjoy until they agreed not to return to the site.

They are among score of ordinary people who have been set all recently. Another was Gillian Byrne who was poor and you one day she walked into the Lifestyle shop and stole a sports and shorts. Today she is serving a six months jall settence. But Larry Goodman who got millions from the lifst tax paye after donating thousands of pounds to the party is walking free His company fiddled weights of meat and changed labels in a to make profits.

At the Goodman plant in Rathkeale, Goodman executives sit nearly £1 million worth of intervention beef. Nobody has been either fined or imprisoned as a result.

Larry Goodman paid huge fees to barrister. The proceeding investigate the antics of Ireland's millionaires endedup makin millionaire of one of the top lawyers, Dermot McGongal.

Now Hamilton has awarded costs of £10 million to Goodman Papers like the Evening Herald who have run big law and or campaigns are delighted to see people like the OBriens or Gill Byrne locked up for their 'crimes'.

But they praise people like Goodman as an 'entrepreneur'. Which goes to prove that prison is only for those who are poor us- we're

GOODMAN International ran one of the biggest tax scams in Irish history.

And now they are trying to have the last laugh by getting a tax amnesty.

Right up to the end of the 1980s workers and managers at Goodman were often paid in cash. No PAYE or PRSI was deducted from their wages.

It was Goodman rather then his workers who benefited from this arrangement.

Goodman used the tax scams to avoid paying the employers PRSI and to keep wages really low. According to one worker,
"Workers were hired from the dole. You were told to turn up at 8 o' clock.

"But if there was no work for you, you would be sent home again. The wages were terrible"

The cash payments were hidden in the company accounts as payments to bogus companies.

According to the Hamilton Tribunal, the system was 'known to top management and undoubtedly uthorised by them'

Collusion

But Goodman would never have got away with it if the country's major accountancy firm, Stokes Kennedy and Crowley had reported what was going on.

They discovered the system in 1987—but they never told the Revenue Commissionaires.

Although Hamilton denies that there was any collusion, there is also something very strange about that fact that the tax inspectors visited Goodman International on 90 different occasions and never found out what was going on.

Goodman came from a long line of Irish gombeen bosses who felt that paying taxing was something for suckers on PAYE.
Only 1% of all taxes in Ireland comes from tax on capital.

Until recently, the Irish bosses and the multi-national paid no taxes on profits made from export-

According to one study, the total cost of tax breaks to industry over the ten year period 1980-90 cost a staggering £10,300 million.

The boss class is so used to tax breaks that even when they are caught breaking the law, they still think they can get away with it.
This is why Goodman has now applied for a tax amnesty.

He has offered a down-payment of just over £4 million and, according to Judge Hamilton, the Revenue Commissioners "are likely" to accept this as a settlement.

But if the Labour Party insisted that Goodman paid up his full tax bill, then they would find that there would not be the need to close down hospital wards or start laxing the dole

"I am disgusted by people of this left wing calibre can do such things to our company, to our country. "They are anti-private enterprise, anti-success, anti-everything, anti-bloody everything"—Larry Goodman

national hose

FIANNA FÁIL politicians often play a "Wrap the Green Flag around me" tune to cover over the class divisions in Ireland.

But the Beef Tribunal has exposed why this Southern Irish national ism is such a fraud.

From 1987 Albert Reynolds ran a fund called the "national interest account".
As Minister for Industry and Commerce he had complete control over it.

It was designed to give Export Credit Insurance to Irish compa-nies exporting to "difficult" coun-tries. If the bills were not paid, they could come to the Irish taxpayer instead.

What was good for the Irish bosses, was supposed to be good for Ireland.

80% of the fund was designed to cover the Goodman company.

But Goodman was not interested in any sentiment about 'the national interest'.

38% of the beef sold to Iraq in 1988 was non-Irish beef. Most of the rest was taken from intervention stocks—the huge beef mountains that have been subsidised by the European Union.

Nonsense

While the Fianna Fail politi-cians talked hypocritical nonsense about standing up for "Irish interests", Goodman coined it in prof-

Every criticism of Goodman, was taken as an attack on Irish interests. When Labour Party poliinterests. When Labour Party pon-ticians began to ask questions about Goodman's activities, the former Fianna Fail leader Haughey accused them of "trying to sabotage the entire beef industry in this country".

The Goodman scandal shows that nationalism has always been the interests of the Irish rich.

had to b used by Fianna Fail to cover for set-up. In 198

MOT ONLY did Good-man International fiddle millions, they are also union busters.

In 1983, Goodman took over Nolan Meats Ballymun in North Dublin. None of the unionised workforce were re-employed. Instead Goodman brought in non-union labour from outside.

from outside.
According to James

Keogh Ballym "God flexib sweep trucks. "Any viewed

GOOD

by su

ments

a win

The

wanted

nationa

ism cou

crats in they gar resource

breakthr

politicia

meet w

Albert I liked. Corru

five ;

Close between

The p

they e they ar Sociali

IT'S STILL ...

The findings of the Beef Tribunal were leaked during the August Bank holiday weekend when many people were on holidays. The Fianna Fáil Taoiseach, Reynolds, hoped that the web of corruption in Irish political and business life would be ignored. Here KIERAN ALLEN looks at what the Best Tribunal tells us about who is running Ireland.

d for three rn to the r and young. a sports top tence. to the partial liking free.

at and characters bels in a bid

and's millioness up making a land's millioness of till me Goodman.

The raid who have up wand order a see people the feel and or Gillian millioness.

ke Goodmanas in imreneur'. prison is only for fixe po are poor.

ed for a tax aments has offered a designation of the to Judge Hamilton in: Commissioners and cept this as a sentered ut if the Labour Party

Goodman paid up to then they would find on hospital wards or see

GOODMAN was built up by successive govern-ments as part of a 'pick a winner' strategy.

The Irish state desperately wanted to create a few multinationals so that Irish capitalism could start to expand.

The politicians and the bureaucrats in the IDA believed that if they gave these companies extra resources, they could make the breakthrough.

Close links were established between these companies and the politicians. Larry Goodman could meet with Charles Haughey or Albert Reynolds at any time he Corruption and bending of rules had to be part and parcel of the

In 1987, Goodman announced a five year development programme. The former Fianna Fáil leader, Charles Haughey, personally launched the new plan. The IDA gave over £30 million in grants to Goodman.

The IDA money was linked to a "performance clause"—designed to ensure that jobs ware.

signed to ensure that jobs were created. But behind the scenes, the IDA was ordered to drop the performance clause from Goodman.

There was to be no talking of clawing back the huge grant if Goodman did not create jobs he promised.

The tragedy was that the Irish Congress of Trade Union endorsed this strategy of "picking

After meeting with Haughey in December 1987, they said that "they welcomed the new strategy for the food and drinks industry

for the food and drinks industry".

They too believed that they had an interest in seeing Irish capitalism expand. And they were desperate to get back involved in centralised pay negotiation with a Fianna Fail government.

According to Brendan Keenan, the Business Editor of the Irish Independent, "Industrial policy is still essentially to pick winners—exactly the policy which benefited the Goodman group"

This is why there is bound to he more Goodman scandals.

-the Irish mafia Fianna

TO BE picked as a winner you have connections with Fianna Fail. That is the rule of Irish business life.

Fianna Fail is the party of Irish business. In the 1930s, it set up protectionist barriers to help Irish business get going.

Today it will bend the rules, get the extra grants, siphon off funds from the EU gravy train to help its friends.

Hamilton's report on the con-tections between Figure Fall and the beef industry is a complete whitewash. But the facts show

Goodman made donations of £175,000 to Fianna Fail funds. He paid more to Fianna Fail than he paid in taxes. Between 1986 and 1989, Goodman only paid £80,000 in corporation taxes.

Gne of the directors of Goodman International is the Fianna Fail T.D., Liam Lawlor, He once chaired an inquiry into the affairs of Irish Sugar—while the Goodman company was preparing a take over bid.

■ Larry Goodman was a regular attender of FF Ard Fheiseanna in attender of FF Ard Fheiseanna in the 1980s.

Reynolds knew Goodman for twenty five years and he invited him to his daughter's wedding.

Goodman was not the only meat baron to make donations to FF.

Oliver Murphy of Hibernia Meats donated £25,000 to FF be-fore the 1987 election. After the election, he was granted Export Credit Insurance.

Within twelve days of getting it, he made another donation of £25,000 to FE

Despite all this, Hamilton claimed that there was no political favouritism involved!

Trade Unions must take stand on North

THE following is an open letter to the Northern Committee of the Irish Congress of Trade Unions written by EAMONN McCANN, chair of the Derry Trades Council and Socialist Worker member.

THE TRADE union movement in the North should be responding far more strongly to the continuing campaign of politically motivated murder.

The Northern Committee of the ICTU should be preparing mass protests to demonstrate the hostility of Protestant and Catholic working class people to the horrors we have witnessed

Catholic working class people to the norrors we have with esset in recent times.

Union officials have already expressed particular concern at the targeting of people at work. The UDA and UVF are clearly embarked on a campaign to drive Catholics out of particular employers by means of murder. More than any other aspect of our present situation, this hits at the very basis of working-class. organisation and calls for a specific response.

To suggest a response to UDA and UVF killings is not to con done recent IRA killings or to belittle the grief of the relatives o the IRA's victims. The trades council in Derry has been consist ent in condemning all killing, by whichever group of paramilitaries or by the official forces of the State.

But our determination to be even handed should not blind ut to the specifics of the situation. The undiluted hatred of Catho lics evident in some recent killings is the most ugly and ominou factor facing us at the moment. Some of the scenes we have had to imagine have had a nightmarish quality about them. Literally to imagine have had a nightmarish quality about them. Literally they don't bear thinking about.

These killings not only inspire horror and fear among Catho lics, there is an implicit threat in them, too, to Protestants. It the extent that the UDA and UVF are projected as legitimate expression of Protestant feeling - their activities regretted bu regarded as "understandable" they are strengthened within the Protestant community, particularly within Protestant working class areas which have reason to feel under pressure. This make it more difficult for the majority of Protestant working-class people who regard the UDA and UVF as disgusting thugs to stand up to them. stand up to them

The UDA and UVF do not represent a legitimate response to the blows deprived Protestant communities have taken in re cent years. There is another better way forward which the trade union movement has a particular duty to point towards and open up. Towards this end, union leaders should be concerned to create space for their members and for others in Protestan areas to stand up for the Catholics. An active union centred campaign against the sectarian killers is the best way to do this Of course, it works both ways. it is appropriate to respondere on behalf of Derry trade unionists to recent attacks on the Fountain, now the only Protestant area on the west bank of the The people of the Fountain should be assured that those involved in the attacks are not representative of the Catholics of the Bogside or anywhere else, and that they are not planned or approved by any group or organisation. However they do reveal the existence of a level of anti-Protestant bigotry which should be condemned and rejected in clear, unambiguous terms. Trade unionists and community leaders in Catholic areas here should be standing up for the Protestants.

Over the past few years, trade union activity has played a positive role in fighting against sectarian hatred and intimidation. The strikes by rank and file members of NIPSA in DHSS offices, for example were extremely investigated in the second contraction.

for example, were extremely important in facing down threats to Catholic workers in a number of offices and preventing the emergence of sectarian division among the workforce.

Walk Out

The walkeut at the shipyard after the murder of Maurice, O'Kane was a more significant event than has been widely recognised, signalling as it did a clear rejection by the workforce of the Loyalist killers and an anxiety to make Catholics in the Yard feel at ease.

The huge rallies following the Shankill and Greysteel atrocities may only have been gestures, but they were important ges-tures, and helped to dispel some of the fog of sectarian despair which was threatening to engulf us at that time. Many of us may have believed that they were organised on too timid a basis, but they were positive in their effect. They should have been followed up by a sustained programme of action. Instead, the momentum was allowed to falter.

The trade union movement should now be actively considering how both to instruction in the current situation.

ing how best to intervene in the current situation. It has been a matter for regret by our trades council that positive suggestions for action which we put forward late last year appear not to have been given serious consideration. We will be pressing these have been given serious consideration. We will be pressing these suggestions again. The trade union movement must become more positive and pro-active in its approach.

I believe personally that union activists and officials should be arguing now for work stoppages to drive the message of non-sectarianism home and to marginalise the bigots. If the official leaders of the movement are unwilling to take this initiative, shop stewards and other activists from different industries and areas should get together to mobilise a rank-and-file response.

EAMONN McCANN Chair, Derry Trades Council.

eogh who lost his job in Ballymun:

"Goodman got complete flexibility with butchers sweeping floors and loading trucks.

"Anyone who was interviewed for a job is asked if they ever worked for Nolan Meats—if they say they did, they are not taken on" A worker in Waterford told Socialist Worker about conditions there.

Good

"It was awful. You were cutting meat with razor sharp knives but they never gave you steel gloves or aprons.

Blood and Gore

"There were young fellows standing in the blood and gore with only a pair of runners on. They did not even supply Wellingtons "Almost every day someone was sent up to the local hospital in Ardkeen with -sometimes they were fairly bad.

"Things changed when the Factory Inspectors came around. They give the companies a few day notice.
"All of a sudden the health and safety notices were put up. Some of the protective gear was taken out of the store room and given out. After that it was back to nor-After that it was back to nor-

lexandra Kollantai

A fighter for real berati omen

name on everybody's lips in Russia 1917.

Workers cheered her as she spoke at packed meetings. Soldiers elected her to represent them on their workers'

She became the first woman minister the world had ever seen when she be-come Commissar for Social Welfare in Russia's new workers government.

The right wing, by contrast, slandered her in their press. She was berated for being a "loose woman".

She was criticised for involving working women in her ministry. The Church was particularly vicious in its attack on her, especially when she converted a monastery into a hospital for invalid soldiers

"There are only two communists in Russia", wrote one critic of the revolu-tion "Lenin and Mme Kollontai".

From a young woman, Kolontai had fought tirelessly for two aims: revolutionary change in society and freedom

One of her first acts of revolt was to refuse a marriage of convenience from her upper class parents.

Against their wishes she married a distant cousin Whathark Kolcarai whose name she kept and with whom she had

She became a socialist during the year

She became a socialist during the year of Russia's first wave of mass strikes in 1896. After visiting a textile factory, she collected money for the striking women. She was inspired by how these women workers had thrown off the chains of peasant customs, and were leading the strike.

leading the strike.

She also realised that " in fighting for the rights of her class, the working women was unconsciously paving the way for the liberation of her sex".

She became a socialist and joined the Bolshevik party.

Her support for working class women brought her into sharp conflict with the feminists of the time. Many of the Russian feminists believed that women could gain their rights without fundamentally changing society. They be-lieved that a separate women's move-ment to win the vote and access to edu-

Kollontai argued that against this. Women were divided into classes just as

Challenge

Upper class women were not prepared to challenge the way society was run so working class women would have to fight for themselves.

Kollantai was proved right in 1905, when domestic servants refused to join their lady employers in a "Union for Women's Equality".

The maids voted with their feet and joined their own working class trade

But it was in 1917 that Kollontai the revolutionary and fighter for women's liberation came together. Returning from exile, and understanding how workers in Russia were ready to fight for a workers revolution, Kollontai was the first Bolshevik to support Lenin in the call for revolution.

She spoke at factories, on streets, on battleships arguing for workers action, for support for strikes, for all power to the So

She understood how important women workers were in this

She helped bring out the Bolshevik paper "Women Worker" (Rabotnitsa) which appeared weekly in June 1917.

Kollontai and others would spend their days going round Petrograd's shops and factories talking to women and returning at night to write copy.

Rallies

Thousands of women workers at-tended rallies which were filled to overflowing.

Thousands more women workers were swelling the ranks of the Bolshevik party.

Kollontai understood how capitalism had forced women into roles that were restrictive and demeaning.

She also saw how things could be so

I always believed that the time inevitably must come when women will be judged by the same moral standards that applied to man.

For it is not her specific feminine virtue that gives her a place of honour in human society, but the worth of her personality as a human being, as citizen, as thinker, as fighter.

Subconsciously this motive was the leading force of my whole life and activity."

In her novels, "A Great Love" and "Love of Worker Bees", this vision of true emancipation for women rings out.

Her characters fight their old oppressive dependence and fight for their own independent dignity. In the process they find the confidence to make new independent lives for themselves. The books are truly ahead of their time are truly ahead of their time.

One of her characters Zhenya speaks openly of her sexual freedom, her need for sexual relations, the fact that she has no time - because of her political activity - to fall in love.

Kollontai believed that the present society allows us no choice and little freedom in our sexual lives.

She predicted that the revolution would bring a great changes in personal lives. She wrote as the cultural and economic base of humanity changes, so love will be transformed"

Stalin's regime tried to quieten Kolontai's voice by sending her off into the diplomatic service.

From the mid twenties onwards, she escaped Stalin's purges because she was an ambassador in Oslo.

She also had to keep quiet about what was going on in Russia. Sometimes she even went along with praising Stalin's view of motherhood. Undoubtedly Stalin's counter repolition had effected belin's counter-revolution had affected her

But in spite of that, her vision of women's liberation, her fight during the revo-lution alongside the women and men workers who made real change possi-ble, is an inspiration for us in Ireland

COTT UEO # [

ised, factories brought together huge numbers of workers, including women, in these massive tex-file and munificus plants up to 10,000 women were employed were employed.

In the lead up to the tirst world war, the number of women in paid employment had doubled. In Petrograd, between 1914 and 1917 the number of women 1917 the number of women 1917 the number of women 1918 and 1919 the number of women 1919 to 1919 the number of women 1919 to 1919 the number of women 1919 to 1 the number of women reached one third of the Wortlorce.

Warrenied the February revolution. It was started by a demonstration by 'hungry women and children demanding bread and herrings' on International Women's

The women's de-mands struck a chord with the workers in the factories. The demonstration developed into a general strike and forced the collapse of the monarchy. As workers estab-lished their own counilished their own councils, women workers were to the fore. In Petrograd women in the tobacco factories demanded protection for pregnant workers.

In a textile mill, workers demanded 100% increase for men and 125% increases for women.

Women workers' lives were the hardest and so they were often the most radical. In May 1917, eight thousand laundreases struck in Petrograd, for an eight hour day and a wage

Kollonial was involved in leading their strike and called for them to adopt Bolshevik demands against the war and the government.

After the October revolution, the new workers' state impoduced new legal norms for women that would be the envy of us here in Ireland Today—or anywhere else.

3,600

Koliontal and the revo-tutionary government gave women the right to yote and hold public of-fice, but also access to free and legal confree ption and abortion for all

Marriage was freed of its religious trappings and divorce made easy. Homosexuality was decriminalised.

It decreed the principle of equal pay for equal work, paid maternity leave for four months before and after child-birth, and legislated for childcare at government expense... Factories were pro-vided with creches and nursing mothers given time off for breast feedime off for breast feeding.

However, laws alone could only do so much, as Kolioniai realised. For women's equality to become a reality, far more needed to be done.

Women's traditional role in the home, what role in the home—what Lenin called "household slavery"—could only be slavery"—could only be got rid of through the provision of communal housing, restaurants and laundries.

By 1920 around 90% of people in Petrograd were opting to eat communally and 60% of the Moscow population were registered at communal canteens.

How successfully the new workers state could revolutionise domestic life was limited by the deprivation and hard-ship that followed the revolution.

Challenge

But it could only begin to do these things at all because it was organising society on the basis of workers' needs not bosses profits.

It was no easy test breaking down the old ideas that people had. In the east of Russia, and in rural areas, new ideas about women's liberation ran up against supersillion.

In 1919 Kollontal and others in the Bolshevik Party set up the Zhanotdel (Womens' Department) partly to challenge these backward ideas. By the mid 1920's, some 500,000 women were participating for the first time in working and peasant women conferences.

In Baku, the Zhenoidel Club reached several thousand members and on International Women's Day thousands of women would gather in the market and tear off their veils.

But these developments were to be shortlived. The Fussian revolution was isolated and defeated. When Stalin came to power workers came to power workers came under cruel attack in labour camps and harsh new production quotas were introduced in the lactories.

Women's freedoms came under the same harmer.

During the 1930's,

abortion was abolished, divorce became much more difficult and Stalin proclaimed the "new soviet family" "swarding women for being model "soviet mothers". The old ways that had so oppressed women in the past were reintroduced. Kollontal had said that you cannot separate the way women are treated from how lite rest of society is run.

She wrote "Women can become truly free and equal only in a world organised along new social and productive lines". more difficult and Stalin

The Russian revolution gave us a glimpse of freedom and equality for women.

It showed how oppression can be begun to be broken in the fight to change society as a whole.

OFOR GROV

Branches of the SWM meet around the country at the following times and venues

ATHLONE: Meets every Tuesday. For details of time and venue write to the SWM national address.

BELFAST: Meets every Tuesday 8pm See SW sellers for details or contact national office

CORK: Meets every Tuesday 8pm Anchor Inn, Georges

DERRY: Meets every Tuesday 8pm Badgers Pub Orchard

DUBLIN NORTH CENTRAL: Meets every Wednesday 8pm

DUBLIN NORTHSIDE: Meets every Tuesday 8pm The Old

DUBLIN SOUTH CENTRAL: Meets every Thursday 8pm Trinity Inn Pearse St

DUNDALK: For details of time and venue write to the SWM

DUN LAOGHAIRE: For details of time and venue write to MAYNOOTH: For details of time and venue write to the SWM national address.

TALLAGHT/CLONDALKIN: Meets every Wednesday 8pm Tallaght Welfare Society next to Foxes Covert in Tallaght

WATERFORD: Meets every Thursday 8pm ATGWU Hall,

To contact the SWM in Athy, Bray, Coleraine, Cookstown Craigavon, Drogheda, Dun Laoghaire, Galway, Kilkenny, Letterkenny, Limerick write to SWM PO Box 1648, Dublin 8, Phone (01) 872 2682 or PO Box 103 Belfast 15

DUBLIN SOUTHSIDE: Meets every Wednesday 8pm

looking for a real socialist alternative to the Labour Party.

Oick Spring is doing everything to cover for the stink of corruption that is coming from Fianna Fáil.

In the North, republican in the North, republican politics have run into a dead

At a time when there is disillusionment amongst Protestant workers they are retreating further into right wing nationalism.
The Socialist Workers

Movement are now working flat out to build this alterna-

As soon as the findings of the Beef Tribunal became were on the streets demand ing that no tax amnesty be given to Goodman.

One member described the reaction like this, "Peo-ple came up and almost grapped the pens out of our hands. We were too soft. We should have been calling for him to be locked up"

A lively picket was organ-ised outside the Revenue Commissioners. Afterwards three people joined the

Despite the attacks of the media, TEAM workers have kept up their protests at Dublin airport.

SWM has given full backing to the struggle

ing to the struggle.
Socialist Workers have been put up all over Dublin g for support for the ers have now joined the

Brogue, Dorset St

Clarkes Bar, 11 Wexford St

the SWM national address

To commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Brit-ish Army going into North-ern Ireland, the SWM organ-ised a speaking tour with an ex-British soldier exposing the reality behind the peacemaker' image. After the tour, he told Sodalist Worker.

"It was my first time back here as an invited guest and I really enjoyed it.

"I was sent back from Northern Ireland because I started to ask to many questions.
"! had to eventualy buy my way out of the army after! got sick of the things! saw.

"Not many people know, for example, that when British soldiers come back from the come back from the North they are given a two week amnesty. "They can go on the town and do more or les what they want to get rid of their frustration. It just shows you what a horrible role they are asked to play."

After Nick spoke in Derry three people decided to join the SWM.

In all over 40 people joined the SWM last month. But now the pace of recruit-ment is being stepped up. The SWM has organised

The SWM has organised its first meeting in Letterkenny and hopes to get organised there. A new branch is being established in Dun Laoghaire.

But the race is on to build a serious socialist organisation in Jerland Write in to tion in Ireland. Write in to join if you are interested.

SWM has produced a new pamphlet to commemorate the arrival of the British Army in Ireland twenty five years ago.

Written by Belfast SWM members it is called The Troops Must Go and is packed with information on what the army has been up to.

It deals witht he argument that any withdrawal would lead to a bloodbath.

It shows that there is a socialist alternative to the dead end politics of republicanism

Order your copy for 50p plus post-age from SWM Books, PO Box 1648 Dublin 8

Agree? Disagree? You can send your letters to: Socialist Worker, PO Box 1648, Dublin 8

Southern Ireland is still a neo-colony of Britain

THE SWM says that Southern Ireland is not a neo-colony:

But sovereign states speak their own language, when they have one.

Unless one wishes to consider stage Irishisms like "Top of the morning to ye, bejappers and be-gorrah" as our own lan-guage, we do not speak our own language.

Secondly, through speaking their own language, sovereign states can think for themselves.

Whimper

We see every day that our almost automatic so-lution for any problem here is to whimper "An-swer please, London/

New York". Thirdly, sovereign states insist on separate international representaour role as good provincial Britishers in British sports teams—the best. known example of which we in Ireland are every so happy to take part in states follow their own interests, as we should.

Our stance on the North is one where we

blindly follow London's AI(N SPIDEAL READER, Gaillimh

Gardaí are the only trouble makers

BEING unemployed and unable to pay inflated prices in Dublin city centre pubs the only option my friends and I have when going out is to buy a carry out and go to Temple Bar where there is usually a lot of people drinking on the street in a good atmosphere.
This is now being curbed by the Gardal.

In recent weeks they have threatened to use the Public Order Bill to clear the streets.

The Gardai are hassling people for nothing more than having a

In the past few weeks notices

In the past rew weeks notices have appeared in pub windows barring drinking on the streets.

So even if you have £2.20 for a pint you have to drink in a packed pub on a warm summer night.

The only trouble makers you see in Temple Bar these days are the boys in blue. Give us back Temple

AL GOODE, Dublin.

SW BACKS THE WRONG BAND!

I HAVE read a few issues of Socialist Worker recently and think that it says a lot of sensible things.

But what were you doing in the last issue promoting the music of an Islamic fundamentalist

What has this band got to say about Iran where women have to wear the veil? Are they for killing Salman Rushdie?

Surely fundamentalism is as bad as some of the extreme right wing groups in Europe.

Could you not find a better band to promote? STEVE McNALLY,

Dublin Land and the second and the s

What we stand

Workers create all the wealth in capitalist society. A new society can only be constructed when they collectively seize control of that wealth and plan its production and distribution.

FOR REVOLUTION, NOT REFORM

FOR REVOLUTION, NOT REFORM
The present system cannot be reformed out of existence. Parliament cannot be used to end the system. It has to be overthrown.
The machinery of the capitalist state—parliament, courts, army, police etc.—is there to detend the interests of the capitalist class, not to run society in a 'neutral' fashion.
To destroy capitalism, workers need to smash the state and create a workers' state based on workers' councils.

FOR REAL SOCIALISM, EAST AND WEST:
The SWM welcomed the break-up of the USSR and the end of the East European dictatorships. These states were not socialist but were run by a state-capitalist class. Workers' revolutions are needed to win real freedom in the East. We are against the domination of the globe by imperialist powers and we oppose their wars. We are for the right of all nations, East and West, to self-determination.

FOR AN END TO ALL OPPRESSION We oppose all forms of oppression which di-vide and weaken the working class. We are for full social, economic and political equality for

We stand for: free contraception and free, legalised abortion and the right to divorce; the complete separation of church and state, an end to church control over schools and hospitals; an end to discrimination against gays and lesbians; an end to racism and anti-traveller bindly.

bigotry. We argue for working class unity in the fight against oppression.

FOR WORKERS' UNITY IN THE NORTH:
Northern Ireland is a sectarian state, propped up by the British Army.
Catholic workers are systematically discriminated against by the state. The division between Catholic and Protestant workers weakens the whole working class.
Workers' unity can only be won and maintained in a fight to smash both the Northern and Southern states

we stand for the immediate withdrawal of British troops. Violence will only end when workers unite in the fight for a workers' republic.

FOR A FIGHTING TRADE UNION MOVEMENT: Trade unions exist to defend workers' interests. But the union leaders' role is to negotiate with capitalism—not to end it. We support the leaders when they fight but oppose them when they betray workers. We stand for independent rank and file action.

FOR A REVOLUTIONARY PARTY:
Yo win socialism socialists need to organise in a revolutionary party. This party needs to argue against right-wing ideas and for overthrowing the system. The SWM aims to build such a party in Ireland.

If you would like to join the SWM or receive more details, send this slip to: SWM, PO Box 1648, Dublin 8, Tel: (01) 872 2682 or PO Box 103 Belfast 15 2AB

Name
Address

Phone

Malard World birth 3(40) TOCA!

THE POPE has launched a vehement attack on contraception and abortion in the run up to the United Nations Conference on Population and Development.

The Vatican has also forged an alliance with Islamic' Fundamentalists and are planning joint opposition to the conference resolutions along with the Iranian au-

These arguments can get a hearing in countries.

as the Philippines, where the sex industry has grown up in response to the presence of both US military bases in response to the presence of both US military bases and western tourists.

Yet politicians who always tolerated the conditions giving rise to the sex industry are now mobilising against abortion and contraception.

When the church in the Philippines called demonstrations against a "global dictatorship" swamping the world with contraceptives, former president CoryAquino played her part by burning sex magazines and copies of the UN draft resolution.

But Aquino gave full support to US army bases when she was President of the Philippines.

As in the West, the criminalisation of abortion simply leads to backstreet abortions.

leads to backstreet abortions.

Before abortion was legalised in India in 1971, it was estimated that over 2 million illegal abortions a year were being carried out by both medical and non-medical per-

Over fifty million abortions are carried out every year around the world, the vast majority of which are illegal. More than 250,000 women die as a result of these illegal abortions.

Postpone

More than 100 million women in the developing world want to avoid or postpone pregnancy, but do not have access to contraceptives.

The reality is that the UN conference has little intention of promoting abortion rights in the developing world.

At the last Conference on Population and Development, held in Mexico City in 1984, a resolution was proposed recognising the dangers of illegal abortion and demanding that all women have access to safe and legal abortion. gal abortion

But this resolution was abandoned in favour of one gal abortion.

But this resolution was abandoned in favour of one which was distinctly anti-abortion in tone.

There is every possibility that the Vatican can exert enough diplomatic pressure to modify any proposals on the introduction of safe, free and legal contraception, since they already know that abortion is off the agenda.

The argument of the ecologists and environmentalists that the world population is raging out of control and that only population control can save the earth can also lead to attacks on women's rights.

In many Third World countries contraceptive drugs like Depro Provera were injected into women by fanatics who were terrified about 'over population'. This did terrible damage to women's health.

This argument about an over-populated Third World has recently been echoed in Ireland by Professor Paul McNulty of UCD. He argues that since Africa cannot produce enough to feed its ever-increasing population, then the answer is to limit the growth of the population. It is nonsense. The average population density in sub-Saharan Africa is less than that of Europe. In this part of Africa there are 16 people per square kilometres while in Europe there are 78 people.

The problem is not the number of people—it is an economic system that is based on robbing the people of Africa.

McNulty does not even want to send food aid, since it of Africa.

McNulty does not even want to send food aid, since it depresses market prices locally.

He seems less concerned about the fact that prices for Africa's international exports, such as coffee, have been kept artificially low for decades, adding to the profits of multinationals such as the Nestle Corporation.

Focusing on population growth is an attempt to shift the blame from the IMF, the World Bank, and the ruling classes, and to blame the poor for their own poyerty.

classes, and to blame the poor for their own poverty.

Film:

Nasty little lies

nothing blockagainst blobuster movies. In fact often mindless, plotless, spe-cial effect laden spectacles are just the thing.

Wildly implausible scenarios, super hero goodies and wickedly nasty baddies battling away for two hours, eveaway for two nours, everyone knows who'll win, it's only a question of how sensational the stunts are—at the end of the day, a bit of harmless entertainment.

True Lies appears just such a movie.

Harry Tasker, played by Arnold Schwazenegger, is a mild-mannered salesman.

Helesses his femilies.

He leaves his family at breakfast and returns at night, often working

He's slightly boring but a steady husband and fa-

Except that, unbeknownst to his trusting family, he is in fact a spy, daily fighting interna-tional terrorists to make his country a safe place

Harry is a hero.

Ironically his wife, Helen, bored by the dullness of her life and on the look out for excitement, is duped by a real sales-man pretending to be a secret agent.
(The salesman is a spy, the spy is a salesman-geddit?) Not exactly awe inspiring, but hardly of-fensive either.

However, True Lies is a nasty little movie.

During the cold war the baddies were usually called Nikolai or Boris and were ruthless unemo-tional Russians.

Ridiculed

There's not much call for old Boris in this new world order. What is a Hollywood film producer to do?

What nationality can be pilloried, ridiculed and represented through a simple character?

In True Lies we have Aziz. Aziz is an Arab, we're not told from where, but hey, who cares. He's an Arab, a lunatic, frothing at the mouth, who wants to nuke America.

His followers are also Arab, lunatic and frothing at the mouth.

They're slightly more stupid and follow him with lolling eyes and chanting mumbo jumbe (we know it's nonsense because it's not English).

Harry must single-handedly save his wife, daughter and the United States from the Arabs and he does so with ease because the Arabs have inferior weaponry and principles and are barking

Blown away

The racism in this film is awe inspiring. We're encouraged to laugh whenever an Arab comes on screen swearing revenge on America and to cheer when they're sprayed with bullets, hung from meat hooks, shot in the eye, set on fire, or blown away. Make no mistake, this is the Gulf War with Schwazenegger playing Schwartzkopf.

Don't get me wrong.

True Lies isn't just racist, there's more to it than

We also have rampant sexism, jingoism and stomach churning violence, with a body count into the thousands.

And it's educational as well. If ever you're in the vicinity of a nuclear ex-plosion, just look away from the blast and kiss Arnie and you'll be fine.

The director of True Lies says he's sick of Political Correctness dictating to Hollywood.

After all it's only a bit of fun, it's all tongue in check. There's no agenda, only killjoys and pinkos could object.

So to show I'm no begrudger I've an idea for a sequel in the same style:

Truer Lies.
The opening shot is a gang of frothing at the mouth terrorists planning to rule the world from their home base at the Pentagon.

The climax is when TEAM workers strap management to the front of a jet and take off.

In the final sequence a small time crook, Albo, from the gombeen party, is overthrown and forced to eat the dog food from his own factory.

Think I'll get funding?
Any takers for a couple of dress rehearsals—just in case.

CATHY BERGIN

the side of the underd

CONOR KOSTICK reviews Fintan O'Toole's new collection of articles about Ireland in the nineties

THE Hierarchy has been embarrassed recently by the reappearance, in full regalia, of Bishop Eamon Casey.

No wonder they squirm at his presence, for it is a reminder of how much authority the Church has lost these past few years.

Fintan O'Toole has been an excellent chronicier of these changing times in Ireland. His latest book is a collection of essays and articles which try and capture Ireland in the 1990's.

The best articles are those where Fintan O'Toole turns his fire against Fianna Fail and the Church.

At the time of the Bishop Casey affair, O'Toole's sympathies were clearly with Annie Murphy, but he observed in her book something which generally escapes

"What is actually much more striking in Annie Murphy's story is the shock of the familiar.

"The view from the Bishop's bed is a new angle on the sumptuous-ness and luxury of life at the top of the clerical ladder.

"Annie Murphy is one outsider ... who became privy to a world whose sensual delights may exsensual delights may ex-clude sex but include the best of food and drink, the finest places to live, the swankiest cars, clothes bought straight from Harrods."

Bingo

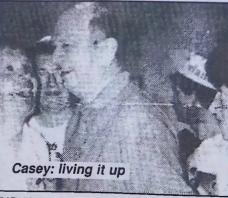

When, in February 1992, Albert Reynolds was about to be elected Taoiseach, O'Toole was scathing:

"Aiben Reynoids's most important contribution to modern Ireland ... is the introduction of the first £1,000 bingo session."
Reynolds has never moved an inch beyond that gombeen business mentality since.

More

O'Toole writes well about the way in which Fianna Fail has, despite its best efforts, lost its all-embracing populism.

The fact that Reynolds now leads the Party, is the result of a process that has seen Fianna Fail evolve into an unambiguous Party of big business.

The other articles in the book are wide ranging and thought provoking. His insights into the relationship between the Irish and America are fas-

He explores the com-plexity of Irish people identifying both with the oppressed in Americathe native Americans and blacks—but also with the American dream and corrupt machine politics.

Oppressed

The essay on the creation of the Crumlin Housing estate is passionate and fiercely critical of the authorities contempt for working class people.

But there is a criticism to make.

Despite his definite commitment to the side of the underdog, Fintan

O'Toole pulls his punches. He can see the head of steam building up amongst the oppressed, but he seems to imagine that by prodding the Church and the Govern-ment, this can be let off, bit by bit.

As a result his essays are sometimes pleading rather than combative.

What should be borne these past few years, is that although Ireland is changing, the employers, the Government and the Church are fighting tooth and nail to preserve their and nail to preserve their privileges.

As a result this country will witness explosions which will make that of the X-case look like a minor tremor.

Black Hole, Green Card: The

Disappearance of ireland, Fintan O'Toole, New Island Books,

Dunnes picketed over Sunday trading WORKERS in Dunnes

Stores picketed outside branches in Killarney, Galway, Grafton Street and Dun Laoghaire for the second successive Sunday last month.

More than a hundred workers turned up and again got a good public response, with only a dozen people entering the Dun Laoghaire branch during the four-hour picket.

The dispute is over Dunne's decision to roster staff for Sun-day work and their refusal to pay the recognised premium rate for Sunday hours.

Broke

Management at the company broke an existing agreement by arrogantly introducing the extra hours without consultation with staff or their union, Mandate.

The ballot for action got close to 100 percent support, and the workers concerned are prepared to stay out till the company honours their contract to make Sunday work voluntary and pays the premium rate of triple time

One Mandate member said that the workers were all in support of the action.

"Knowing the company, they won't back down easily," he said, but then neither will we. For the foreseeable future the pickets

Dublin

DUBLIN Corporation is still facing major resist-ance from workers they want to move to new buildings at Wood Quay. An IMPACT member told Socialist Worker, "They want us to move in late September but we are refusing to go. It is not about money or anything.

"They built the offices there for 650 people but then discovered that space for 750 was needed. They think that they can simply squash in the extra hundred"

However workers are not putting up with cramped accommodation. They have banned all preparatory work on the move. Four departments – Planning, Law, Surveyors and Architects are also taking industrial action by working to rule.

At first the Corporation tried to intimidate the union by threaten-ing to sack temporary workers if the action was not called off. But after a threat of wider solidarity action, the Corporation backed down from this threat.

down from this threat.

According to the IMPACT member "The dispute could be resolved very easily. They could just hold back one of the departments that are supposed to move. But it looks like we are going to have to looks like we are going to have to fight them to make them see

Royal Mail workers fight

TWO hundred Belfast postal workers took to the streets recently against the Tory plans to privatise the post office.

Management have threatened to discipline workers who put up anti-privatisation posters. The marchers were supported by British Telecom workers and members of the Belfast Trades Council

The first thing people wondered were how they considered.

The first thing people won-dered was how they could get any more out of us.

The post office have already changed duties for many work-ers and forced extra workload

Since I started six years ago the work force has dropped from twelve hundred to little over six hundred. Any people taken on have all been on parttime temporary contracts.

SW: What is the feeling on hatred of the bosses. When I first started, when you cleared up your work the supervisor

People are angry but the union is just not taking a lead. Last year the mood was to reject the 1.5 percent pay deal, but when the union official spoke he recommended us to accept and said it didn't matter accept and said it didn't matter anyway because the majority in Britain would accept. We asked the question: If we rejected the deal in Belfast, would the union support any action?

Refused

But he refused to give us a straight answer. I worked out £2 worse off with increased tax worse off with increased tax and national insurance brackets. People need a stronger leadership to fight.

SW: What about the tremendous examples of unofficial action in Britain, in particular the two thousand people on strike in Liverpool in support of a colleague?

The first anybody head about them was through Socialist Worker leaflets.

These things just don't get reported on the news.

When i asked the snop stew-when i asked the snop stew-ard about a strike he said he knew nothing about it. People thought those strikes were brilliant, but we feel iso-lated sometimes in Belfast so there's a real need to link the SW: How do you feel about the future? Do you think the Tories will be forced to retreat?

If privatisation goes ahead it will be a real kick in the teeth for many people. It will mean compulsory job losses and pay

We have never been faced with that before but it's not hard

Management have promised to consult and keep us informed and to generally reassure us, but no-one believes in any of that.

The Tories could be beaten very easily if we stuck together, but we need people to stick together and fight to link the struggles in every area.

IRISH STEEL

THE press are delighted with the outcome of Irish Steel.

They are full of stories of craft workers repenting for rejecting a cost cutting plan and accepting the new deal.

The reality is completely different. The union officials of the ferent. The union officials of the craft workers accepted the aggregate vote to cut wages—the workers never did.

Irish Steel have not yet dared implement their plan for 'cross fertilisation'—getting craft workers to do SIPTU members out of a lob. out of a job.

Craft shop stewards have pledged that they never will. The battles at Irish Steel are not yet

Cuts threat at ESB

WORKERS at the ESB are facing new attacks on their conditions and a threat of mass redundancy.

Management have gone on the offensive after a recent vote by workers at the Poolbeg power station.

Faced with the introduction of new turbines workers at the station were told that if they did not accept changes that the jobs at the plant would be given over to contract workers from the ESB (International).

Faced with this threat union officials argued for a deal which 'blurred the edges' between skilled grades and for a cut in overtime earnings,

Many workers now stand to loose up to 20% of the overtime earnings they got in the past.

The vote for the deal was three to one. As soon as the vote came through management did every-thing to publicise their new plans for cost and competitiveness

They want to sack between 2,000 and 4,000 workers and claimed that this will be done through 'natural wastage'.

But according to one worker
"There is not enough people at retirement age. They will try on redundancies. We have to start organising resistance now

MMDS Protest in Waterford

FOUR hundred people turned up to a meeting in Waterford to protest about the erection of a Multipoint Microwave Distribution System mast for beaming in extra television channels at Hathfadden.

Later Socialist Worker

spoke to a UCW worker in Belfast's Toome Street sort-

Ing office about the mood and effects of cutbacks there.

in your office when privatisation was announced?

SW: What was the feeling

The site overlooks the whole city and is surrounded by huge working class housing estates.
Recent studies have raised seri-as doubts about the safety of the MMDS system.

Donal O'Riordan from Galway

told the meeting how he developed "chronic fatigue syndrome" as a result of working with non-ionising radiation, and how it "ruined his life".

Professor Roger Coghill: "Lit-tle is known about the biological effects of low level radiation, but many institutions are reducing their many institutions are reducing their level of exposure.

Los Angeles City, Kirkland airforce base, and the US Environmental Protection Agency have reduced their exposure level to one hundred times below the accepted standard for the Irish National Radiation Protection Board. A city diation Protection Board. A city such as Boston has already banned the use of MMDS."

One of the major investors in the MMDS system is a company called Princess Holdings in which called Princess Holdings in which Tony O'Reilly has a major interest. The system can also be used to set up a mobile phone network.

This is where O'Reilly sees himself making huge profits. He does not care that the system is already obsolete and is a possible danger to the health of people.

STHARYS SALESTN

WORKERS at St Mary's Hospital in the Phoenix Park held a brief sit-in after the management re-

Park held a brief stell after the function of the work of someone who went on maternity leave was only being half covered and a supplies officer's job was not properly filled.

After the action a shop steward who first raised the issue per an apology from management for the way he was matter was referred to further negotiations.

the shop floor towards these cutbacks? There is real bitterness and up your work the supervisor would let you go home. Now you're hardly allowed from your area for even a short chat to your mates.

The management are constantly on our backs over the silliest things.

Even the people who used to put themselves out doing to put themselves out doing extra shifts and who would ba-sically do anything for the post office are angry at the way things have gone.

Sw: You've mentioned a lot of anger. Is there a mood for a fight back?

U.C.D. Cleaners ballot UCD cleaners have balloted for strike action. They recently had to face the issue of new contracts.

Some workers were not taken back. In other cases workers found that their hours were be-ing cut from two and a half hours a day to two.

But they were still expected to do the same work.

UCD workers launched an important strike some years ago which set headlines for the treatment of part-time workers. They can do the same again and put some manners on a vicious boss class.

ACTION at TCD over the treat ment of cleaners has been called off after SIPTU reluctantly recommended a deal where few gains were made.

The issue of pension referred to the LRC.

Trinity management have agreed to illi create 13 new jobs over two years to replace the cleaners they have made redundant.

Further action could have got more from management. has been called off after SIPTU reluctantly rec-ommended a deal where

STAFF at UCD library took unofficial strike ac tion when they were asked to load a new tape onto the computers network. Union members argued that the management were trying to break a technology agreement.

The tape was the property of a private company which is connected with some of the top managers of the library.

By taking the action workers showed that they are not going to ocialist

For a Workers' Republic and International Socialism 40p

Inside: Rwanda: bled dry by the Western banks-page 4

CRIMINA

THE NEW Tory Criminal Justice Bill is a vicious piece of legislation.

The Criminal Justice Bill will arm the police with almost unlimited powers to harass and criminalise road protesters, squatters, ravers, travellers and hunt saboteurs.

It is a disgusting assault on basic civil rights, the right to party, the right-to live wher-ever and however you want and the right to protest.

Anyone who doesn't fit into whether wanting to stop a hospital closure or going to a rave—is under attack from this bill.

The police could be able to bar an assembly from an area of up to five miles for a pe-niod of up to four days.

Disperse

The bill refers to raves as "sounds wholly or predominantly characterised by the emission of repetitive beats". If police hear these sounds they can move in and disperse heavy the seconds whether it has a form people whether it be a few friends listening to music or an organised rave.

But it also means that any-

But it also means that anyone having a party at night can be raided by the police and if they refuse to move can be locked up for three months. It will end the right to silence when arrested in Britain. This will make it easier for the police to extract false confessions. confessions.

As Hugh Callaghan of the Birmingham Six says, "taking away the right to silence will cause more miscarriages of justice."

More than that, at the heart of the bill is an attack on workers right to organise.

The Tories know that the

The Tories know that the bitterness people feel against them is breaking through in strikes and demonstrations.

They want to outlaw all these fightbacks.

If they succeed, they will make criminals of ordinary people organising to defend the Health Service, or workers striking against Post Office privatisation.

It will allow them to push

"People have a right to enjoy whatever music they like without the cops coming in telling them to turn it off" -Terry Hooley, Belfast record store owner through cutbacks and job losses, by getting rid of basic Trade Union rights. However, the Labour Party has played a treacherous role.

Its MPs abstained on the vote in parliament.

Worse still, their new leader Tony Blair boasted that Labour even helped draft some provisions in the bill.!

Yet, the bill can be beaten. If the Tories want to divide us.

we need to unite against them. In July 80.000 people dem-onstrated in London against the Criminal Justice Bill. We can build a similar campaign in Northern Ireland, if we orgamise all those under attack by the bill.

Last year in the South. Reynolds brought in a Public Order Act which has the same type of provisions. The second person arrested under the Act dies in a police station.

Profits

Our rulers, whether in Downing St. or Leinster House have a common interest to protect themselves and the profits of their rich friends from the growing wave of protests and strikes.

It is in the common inter-est of both Catholic and Protestant trade unionists and workers to fight this bill.

Workers hold the power to hurt the Tories where it really hurts, in their profits.

Mass working class action kicked out Thatcher and the poll tax. If we use our strength, Major and this rotten piece of Tory bigotry and repression can go the same

Join the Campaign against the Criminal Justice Bill—Write to P.O. Box 103 Belfast 15 2AB.

1. Leaflet your own workplace or local factories.

2. Order the Campaign factsheet and pass them out to your friends.

3. Pass a motion in your union or college condemning the bill and resolving to support any demonstrations against the bill.

Vhat the Bill means

Ends your right to silence if arrested making eve-yone guilty until proven innocent.
Gives police the power to "Stop and Search" you on the streets.

3. Makes it a criminal offence—with a six month jail

3. Makes it a criminal offence—with a six month jail sentence—for a squatter to stay in a building 24 hours after a court has granted a possession order.

4. Locks up children as young as ten in prisons run for private profit.

5. Any protest, picket or trespass can be banned at the discretion of the police with fines of up to £2,500 or 3 months in prison for noncompliance.

6. Any assembly of people can be banned for up to four days from an area of up to five miles. Raves, street parties, demonstrations and pickets could all be outlawed under this provision.