

No money for the nurses but n enty fo increase"

JUST BEFORE Christmas the deputies of Dail Eireann rushed through a Bill to give themselves big allowances.

Coming on top of the Dunnes scandal, it is one of the most brazen acts of scrounging in years. They even managed to backdate their claims for more money so that they get to share out a £500,000 increase for expenses run up since January 1996.

This way even those who lose their seats in the next election will manage to get their hands on some loot.

Privileged

From now on, Dail deputies will be able to live an even more privileged life. They will get: ■A £2,000 telephone allowance.

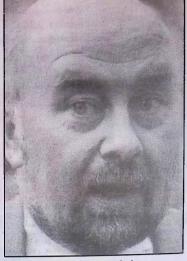

lowance. Up to now they had to produce their bills but this has now been abolished. A £54.48 overnight allowance if they live more than 20 miles from Dail Eireann

They do not have to produce any evidence that they stayed in a hotel or B&B. More money for their par-ties. Fianna Fail's new allowance of £710,000 is more than double what they got before while Democratic Left can now claim £97,000 just because they have TDs in the Dail.

Ruairi Quinn has had the gall to argue that the pay hikes are "a very necessary tension

Finance Minister Ruairi Quinn

But this is the same Minister for Finance who has been telling nurses that there is no more money in

Expenses

TDs are already grossly overpaid.

overpaid. They already earn £34,362 and that is before the expenses they get. According to an RTE sur-vey, only one in three Dail Deputies depend on their Deputies depend on their

the country for them.

Dail income as their sole source of earnings.

A politician like Michael McDowell earns more in a single day as a barrister than some workers earn in a month.

At the moment the poli-ticians are trying to blame the Dunnes scandal on the fact that we do not pay them enough.

For tens of thousands of low paid workers whose taxes will now fund them, this is really a sick joke.

Resistance defeated water charges

LABOUR's Environment Minister Brendan Howlin has finally abolished the water charges

This hated tax raised over £50 million for the state and angered PAYE workers who knew they were paying 'on the double'.

PAYE workers already provide the bulk of the country's tax and were in no mood to pay the country's tax and were in no up once again for their services. Labour and Democratic Left TDs are already claim-ing that Howlin's move is a result of their efforts in Coalition. But nothing could be fur-ther from the truth ther from the truth. Water charges were beaten because of mass the resistance Tens of thousands of people in the Dublin area simply refused to pay the charges.

Courts

shook his hand.

by working class people.

Shock his hand. Other TDs made no comment be-cause knew that they could also find themselves in the spotlight for the same sort of activity. Lowry has shown up the real atti-tude of the Irish rich. They do not believe that they should pay tax. They think that is only for suckers who are on the PAYE system. The disgraceful behaviour in Dail Eireann before Christmas shows ex-actly why Lowry and the corrupt sys-em he stands for have to be abolished by working class people.

'IT WAS money I got for work done'. That was Michael Lowry's explanation of how he had managed to ge £208,000 from Ben Dunne.

Lowry took a full three weeks to come up with an explanation. He claimed that he had to consult his lawyers and accountants to work out exactly how he got his house reno-

That he had no explanation for why Dunnes paid for his house but put it down as part of the cost of re-furbish-ing the ILAC Centre in Dublin. That like other tax evaders, he had availed of the tax amnesty.

That he got other payments from Ben Dunne

In other words, Lowry admitted that he was breaking the law.

Proposed

Hundreds of working class people have been sent to jail for less. People who have robbed small amounts from supermarkets have been criminalised.

been criminalised. And now under changes proposed when Lowry was a Minister, they can even be deprived of bail for offenses which are far less then Lowry's. The most sinister aspect of the scandal was that Michael Lowry was the main fundraiser for Fine Gael. He the main fundraiser for Fine Gael. He managed to clear off the party's debt within a very short space of time. The sickest thing about the whole affair was the amount of sympathy that was displayed for Lowry in the Dail. The Labour TD for the area Michael Enrice area want over and

15

Michael Ferris even went over and meetings to help organise protests. The final straw came when 400 people turned up outside a court in Swords to make sure that anti-water charges protestors got off. Scandalously, Labour and Democratic Left coun-cillors regularly voted for the charges at local level. They tore up their elec-tion promises and be-trayed their supporters. Deirdre Cronin from the Ballinteer against Water Charges group told Social-ist Worker, "We are often told that ordinary people can never really bring ago.

been accused of professional misconduct by a group call-ing themselves "Victims of Child Abuse Laws". Five parents are main-taining they were wrongly accused of child sexual abuse in the late 1980s at the Rotunda SATU. Their children have since been returned to them by the courts. Dr. Maura Woods has de-nied all charges of profes-

Ex Minister Michael Lowry

Abuse

Dr. Maura Woods, Direc-tor of the Sexual Assault Treatment Unit (SATU) at the Rotunda Hospital, has been accused of professional

Dr. Matra woods has de-nied all charges of profes-sional misconduct. This group is chaired by Eddie Hernon. He is a par-ent of one of the five fami-lies whose child was assessed at the SATU.

the swhole child was assessed at the SATU. He believes that child abuse does not occur in the family. He also believes that organisations like the Rape Crisis Centre and Women's Ail parents abuse! All parents should have the right to challenge accu-sations which they feel are unfounded. However, this is not a sim-setting up the first Sexual Assualt Treatment Unit and has constantly campaigned for more funding and a fur-ther extension of the units. Three more units have circus hear set un ple case of parents feeling they have been wrongly ac-cused. There is more to this story they must the out

There is more to this story than meets the eye. It is obviously a personal attack on Dr. Maura Woods. She is somebody who has championed Women's rights and exposed child abuse all through her career are a doctor.

treatment

as a doctor. She was instrumental in Criticism Many of those who op-pose Maura Woods want the whole area of abuse covered inside svstem the since been set up.

veloped a genetically en-gineered soya bean that will be used to make the

If you don't want to risk your brain turning to sponge, don't eat beef. But you'll have no choice at all when it comes to eating geneti-cally engineered food whose potentially harm-ful effects are not yet known.

Most manufactured food (like bread, break-fast cereals, margarine, chocolate etc) contains soya oil and US chemical giant, Monsanto, has de-

doctor accused

oil. The main benefit for The main benefit for Monsanto is that the new bean is resistant to her-bic i de s — w h i c h Monsanto also make. So they will make dou-ble profits, from selling the seeds and the chemi-cals to treet the plants. But food manufactur-ers using these beans -the first genetically engi-neered substance to be allowed into the food chain - don't have to re-veal their presence on in-gredient labels. Genetically engi-neered food is supposed to be cheap—a way of feeding the world's starv-ing millions. But capitalism isn't in-terested in feeding the hungry. Monsanto won't allow farmers keep beans from year to year to sow for the next sea-son's crop. son's crop. The farmer has to buy new seeds every year from the company. Instead of getting cheaper, food will just get more dangerous. And Monsanto's shareholders will he hav-ing a beanfeast.

nomic groups even drop out of education alto-gether once they leave ures released in December. While every other child While every other child from a professional background makes it into further education, "Only a negligible per-centage of the children of manual worker, com-pleted a third level course," according to the Irish Independent. And over one in five kids from those eco-nomic groups even drop

Minister Brendan Howlin

change. "But Howlin's move "But Howlin's move shows the power we have when we stick together. If we can beat this government on water charges, we can defeat them on a lot more" The Coalition will now

The Coalition will now try to pass on the cost of abolishing water charges on to the working class again. They are trying to get out of ending refuse charges. They are also try-ing to penalise poeple who drive cars. But the money to pay for local authorities can be gotten from the rich. They pay only a small amount of tax. Fifteen years ago there were major demonstra-tions to demand a Tax on the Greedy not the needy It is as relevant today as it was more than a decade

it was more than a decade

primary school. This compare to one in twenty for those for chil-dren of higher profes-sionals and one in 17 for those from a lower pro-fessional background.

"Wealth gap decides who will go to college" gasped the Independent.

Not news for parents on average incomes who have tried to put a kid through college or to pay for grind to help them pass their Leaving Cert.

mate major funding needs to be poured into the area.

up, like it was in the 40's and 50's in Ireland. The Fitness to Practise Committee of the Medical Council has made an un-precedented decision to hold the hearing in public. This committee is known to have a majority who sup-port the Pro-Life movement. The level of criticism by the medical profession the medical profession against this decision has

Most children whose parents are semi- or un-skilled manual workers are unlikely ever to see the inside of a third level college, according to stark 1991 census fig-nothing to improve it. What is needed is a cli-mate where children have the opportunity to make complaints without fear. In order to create that clibeen tiny. The whole area of child abuse is a minefield at the moment. Cases like this will do what we think UST DEMOCRACY B Y BISNESS?

THE POLITICIANS of Dáil Eireann have found a new excuse for accepting donations from big business. Democracy, they claim, is an expensive business. Modern parties are so com-plicated; they have to do lots of research; and giving the public information is just so costly costly costly. The poor creatures just have to go to Dunnes and Goodman to fund their operations. Inadvertently, they have re-vealed the real nature of de-mocracy in capitalism. Up to now the politicians sim-ply argued that in a democracy every citizen had the right to vote.

vote. We were all supposed to be equal when it came to influenc-ing the affairs of state. Yet now the establishment is admitting that vast amounts of money are needed to gain po-litical influence. Clearly those with money will never choose to fund or-ganisations like the Socialist Workers Party who intend to remove their wealth. They will only back parties that pro-mote their interests. So far from everyone having an equal chance to decide what happens, we are now told that democracy needs to be able to call on big business who can in turn decide who gets political in-fluence. This means that left wing nar-fluence. This means that left wing par-ties under modern capitalism will always be at a disadvantage. But why do organisations like Fianna Fail or Fine Gael need such vast amounts of money? Few people believe that they engage in great amounts of 're-search' or that they produce highly informative material.

Favours

The reason for the money has more to do with the rela-tionship with their own supporters. These parties back capital-ism to the hilt but they need to win the votes of the working Class. They stand for a policy of cut-backs and 'flexibility' from work-ers—yet need their electoral support. Their message can hardly motivate people in working class areas to go out and work to give them a lucrative career. So they have to rely on money to pay canvassers and to promise little favours. They also have to try to change the nature of political debate.

change the nature of political debate. Instead of seriously ad-dressing issues and openly stating their policies, they need to turn politics into a great and glamorous game. They need millions for adver-tising campaigns that try to cre-ate an artificial buzz of excite-ment around some boring yob in order to get people to iden-tify with them. Until recent times, the Labour Party mainly relied on funds from trade unions and from col-lections at local level. But as their working class base begins to decline, they also turn to big business.

In Ireland, the process is only starting. But in countries like France and Italy, Labour Parties wallow in corruption the more they turn their back on their they turn their back on their working class support. The former leader of the Ital-ian Labour Party, for example, is a wanted man who is in hid-ing in North Africa to escape a charge of corruption. Giving parties money from the state does nothing to solve the problem of bribery. It only adds insult to injury as working class people not only have to put up with exploitation but then get taxed to pay for but then get taxed to pay for parties who want to justify that activity.

Control

The political parties should certainly be told to raise money from their own members. That is how organisations like the Socialist Workers Party has the Socialist Workers Party has always operated. But we also need to recog-nise that the democracy of capi-talism will always be limited. You cannot have real democ-racy when you have no control over the economy of society. If ordinary people are to re-ally make decisions about how their society is organised then their society is organised, then they have to be able to control their own workplaces. That in turn will mean remov-ing the wealth from the likes of Ben Dunne. It is the only way to establish a real say for the peo-

THE COALITION are hoping to calm public anger over the corruption in Dail Eireann by a new Electoral Bill

The bill places some limits on business donations to political parties and grants them state funding. In reality, the measure is a sham that will help cover up the scandal. Politicians will still be al-lowed to spend a staggering £18,000 per Dáil candidate in an election. That means that the big richt wing parties will have its on business donations right wing parties will have plenty of money to pay can-vassers and dominate the media with their advertise-eaching of the Church. Socialists welcome

Submission

these changes.

ments. Worse, the limit of £18,000 per candidate only applies at election time.

election time. Up to the day the Dáil is dis-solved, the political parties can spend a fortune on all sorts of ventures that help to buy votes.

Root out

The Bill proposes that all donations over £4,000 be revealed.

Yet many of Ben Dunne's donations were smaller than this amount.

Under this provision, the Taoiseach John Bruton or Health Minister Michael Noonan would not have to reveal that they got donations. There is also nothing in the Electoral Bill to stop a com-pany getting a variety of trust-worthy executives to hand out a number of donations for £3.999. The reality is that no Bill

The reality is that no Bill can stop the political corrup-tion that comes with modern capitalism.

capitalism. A year ago the Labour Party claimed that they had started to root out corruption in public life by introducing an Ethics Bill. They argued that if there was a register of members' interests in the Dáil the re-sulting transparency and openness would stop corrup-tion.

But the Bill did not force Michael Lowry to reveal that his house had been reno-vated with the help of Ben Dunne.

Ben Dunne and Michael Lowry-2208,000 worth of democracy

Dunne. No matter what measure is introduced the rich always find ways of getting around it. They have already become expert at dodging taxes through 'legitimate means' so there is little difficulty in un-dermining laws about politi-cal influence. As long as there are peo-ple who control vast amounts of wealth, they will want a few politicians on the pay roll. And there will never be a shortage of right wing parties who are more than willing to volunteer.

volunteer.

against. The priesthood in Ire-

The priesthood in Ire-land was drawn largely from the wealthier classes in rural areas who grew after the fam-ine in the last century. These groups were obsessed with owning land and regulating sexuality so that there was no danger of 'ille-gitimate children' that would make a claim on their inheritance. The result was a

The result was a church which identified moral living with an ignorance of sex.

Distorted

And while they preached abstinence

Religion in decline RELIGION IS on the RELIGION IS on the decline in Ireland. The influence of the Catholic Church is falling quicker than at any previous time. Throughout the whole of the 1980s, the numbers attend-ing Mass at least ing Mass at least once a week only dipped from 87% of the population to 85

The rearguard action fought by the Church on divorce and abortion helped shore up their numbers. Today the situation has changed dramatically. Only two thirds of the population as a whole say they go to Mass say they go to Mass once a week. In Dublin, it has dropped to half while in the age group 18-24 it is lower still. More importantly, the vast majority of people now claim that they do not let the Church dic-tate how they decide moral issues. 78% of the IrIsh population claim to fol-low their own con-science rather than the thority. But already there are some voices arguing that a decline in the church means an ero-sion of morality. They claim that if reli-gious belief decreases, society will become more violent and greedy.

They show that work-ing class people are no longer under the thumb of Bishops who preached submission and deference to au-

Yet this is to misun-

In doing so they help to promote the very 'materialism' and ego-ism of capitalism that they then pretend to be the moral protectors

And while they preached abstinence except in marriage, they breached their own codes in the most distorted of ways. The decline in this type of morality is a good thing. The rise of a set of values which promote co-operation and a truly human society cannot be dependent on restoring the power of the Church. It can only grow through deeper strug-gles against the mar-ket. Only the rise of an ac-tive working class movement can bring with it the type of mo-rality that can over-come the dog eat dog world of the free mar-ket.

the state and private property. They are ever ready to condemn strikes while preach-ing an acceptance of powerty

Condemned prisoners on death row in the US targeted by Christian fundamentalists derstand the message that the Bishops preached. They have al-ways been prepared to support the morality of the privileged and the status quo.

Respect

Constantly, they tell their 'flock' to respect

PAGE FOUR SOCIALIST WORKER

Orange Order drops its mask

"A MAN who would sell his soul to the devil" and who be-trayed his birthright by "marrying a Rom-anist and serving communion in a Roman Catholic Church".

This is how the newly elected Grand Master of the Orange Order. Robert Saulters described Tony Saulters came from the 'moderate' wing of Orangeism rather than the even more extreme 'Spirit of Drumcree' group. But his bigotry exposes the lie that Orangeism is just an expression of Protestant an expression of Protestant culture. Tens of thousands of ordinary Protestants were appalled by his statement and wanted nothing to do with him.

Ever since Drumcree there has been a rise in petrol bomb attacks on the homes of people in mixed matriages. Tiny groups of bigots who support Saulters' views have been behind the attacks.

The Northern Ireland Mixed Marriages Associa-tion claim that up to 50 fami-lies have been attacked in recent months.

recent months. David Trimble's response to the controversy about Blair has been to back the Grand Master. When he was asked to condemn the comments on RTE, he merely said, "Why should I?"

should I?"

He then added that, "The Orange Order is an organisation of Protestants. "I think it's perfectly in or der for a person who is head of that organisation to make such comments as he considers appropriate with regard to these matters" The reality is that the en-tire Unionist establishment is infected with bigotry to the very core. They deliberately encourage the violent thugs who want to attack Catholics. On the Apprentice Boys march in Derry on December 14, a bandsman carrying a UFF banner appeared and was flanked by six men in black uniforms and berets.

UFF thugs openly parade on Derry walls and (inset) Orange Grand Master Robert Saulters

Innocent

The UFF was the cover name used by loyalist or-ganisation who carried out assassinations on innocent Catholics. Yet the Orange Order wel-comed these thugs onto their parade and enjoyed the co-operation of the police who turned Derry into an armed camp so that they could march through the city cenkeep Tories n power

Unionists

JOHN MAJOR and the Tory government are hanging onto power with the help of the Official Unionists.

Their deputy leader John Taylor claimed the Unionists would only bring down the government over issues to do with fisheries, farming and the 'constitutional question tion'. But already Patrick Mayhew's budget for the North shows ex-actly how all working class peo-ple are going to suffer. The Unionist Party must be de-lighted to find that £120 million ex-tra is being handed over to the law and order budget and cut from the poorest and most vulnerable peo-ple in society.

Cutting

Single parents, of whom there are almost 100,000 in Northern Ireland, have had their benefits slashed in the budget to starvation level.

The Tories are cutting £11 a week from single parents leaving a sin-gle parent with one child to live on just £60 a week. The Housing budget was cut by £22 million and Housing Executive rents are to go up by 4 percent. Campaigners for the homeless say that bad as things are now, this cut will mean thousands more will have no chance of getting a house in the future future.

Ill-health

The Tories have now declared a war on prescription costs' in the North.

These are higher here than in

These are higher here than in Britain and for good reason. Research shows that there is greater ill-health in Northern Ire-land than in the rest of the UK, largely because of poverty and poor diets. Unionist leaders like Trimble have always supported these right wing attacks on working class people. But up to now they have been able to hide behind the fact that they were not directly responsible for the attacks.

Their open support for the Tories means that will now start to change.

Incredibly, Blair's Labour Party has said it will not be reversing the cuts in housing benefit, or lone par-ents' allowance, when it comes to power.

POLICE AUTHORITY SURVEY: One in three Protestants want RUC reformed

Many Protestants are deeply unhappy about the sec-tarianism and brutality the RUC displayed this sum-ruer, according to a new survey by the Police Authority for Northern Ireland.

One in three Protestants now want the RUC to be reformed.

This is up from one in four or 23% last year. An even

This is up from one in four or 23% last year. An even higher number, 39%, said they had "little or no confi-dence" in the RUC due to Drumcree, "Community policing" can't change that either. One quarter of Protestants surveyed think that their local police are doing a "fairly or very poor job"—almost twice as many as in 1995. And when it comes to parades as many as 29% of Protestants want a temporary han on all parades 33%

And when it comes to parades as many as 25% or Protestants want a temporary ban on all parades, 33% want a special body to decide future marches instead of the RUC, and 14% say there are "too little" restric-tions on Protestant marches. These are Protestants who don't necessarily see the PUC as "their" online forme and who are willing to side

RUC as "their" police force and who are willing to side with Catholics against sectarianism, whether it comes from the RUC or loyalist thugs in Harryville.

Roisin McAliskey—innocent until D/(#1

Roisin McAliskey is seriously ill. Underweight and ill before she became pregnant, every doctor who has examined her agrees she needs specialist treatment.

After her arrest at her home in Coalisland, Co. Tyrone, she was transferred to Britain. For some time, she was held in the all-male top secu-rity prison Belmarsh where she was in solitary confine-ment and unable to receive visitors.

Danger

Outcry at her treatment led to her transfer to Holloway where, says lawyer Gareth Pierce, her health is deterio-rating rapidly and she is in

Bernadette and Roisin McAliskey clear danger of miscarrying nessed her parents being shot her baby. Roisin has suffered from stress induced asthma and other illnesses since she wit-by loyalist assassing when she was only nine. As a re-sult, she weighed less than seven stone before her arrest.

any decent society, she would be in hospital on a drip. Instead, she is in a high se-curity prison with little or no suitable medical care and suf-

Suitable medical care and suf-fering frequent, degrading strip searches. Sick as she is, she's hardly likely to be able to jump bail. Yet, although she has not been charged, she is still de-nied hail nied bail.

The reason for this inhuman and degrading treatment is clear. She is the eldest daughter of civil rights leader and former MP, Bernadette McAliskey.

Treatment

Normally, the child of a former MP could expect a different kind of special treatment-an open prison and quick bail

But Bernadette treated the But Bernadette treated the House of Commons with the contempt it deserves, refusing to go along with its silly rules—shouting down bigots and striding across the floor of the house to punch Reginald Maudling after Bloody Sunday

Bloody Sunday. Ever since, the British rul-ing class have wanted to get back at her

They haven't been able to do that, so now they're threat-ening the life of her pregnant daughter.

international news

South Korean workers WORKERS IN South

Korea threatened to strike on two days in December in protest at the government's planned new labour laws. The 1.1 million strong, legal, Federation of South Korean Trade Unions threatened the partial stop-pages unless the new laws, which were due to go through parliament, were postponed.

Postponed

Earlier, the illegal Korea Confederation of Trade unions postponed a planned 4 hour strike of its 500,000 members in 300 compa-

It said the labour regulations had no chance of be-coming law before parlia-ment broke up for Christ-

Australia:

The ruling New Korea Party wants to revise labour laws to meet the conditions for joining the OECD club of "rich nations". OECD officials say

South Korea needs to liberalise its anti-union laws, most of which date from the days of military dictatorship.

That would mean lifting the ban on more than one union being recognised in a single company and allowing trade unions to donate money to political par-

But the government's proposals only promise to introduce these changes gradually. Worse, they will remove basic legal safe-guards on job security guards on job security which limit layoffs and flexible working. Increasing "flexibility in the labour market" is also one of the demands of the OECD, along with loosen-ing controls on foreign investment.

The military dictatorship in South Korea was forced to concede limited employee rights to head off a major strike wave in the late 1980s.

Attack

Now, under the cover of allowing freer trade unions, the government wants to incorporate trade union leaders and strengthen the hand of management. Bosses of South Korea's biggest firms, like Daewoo and Hyundai, want to use the opportunity of joining the OECD to attack workers' organisation. There have been only 100 strikes so far this year, but both the illegal and legal union federations are growing.

Although only 15 per-cent of South Korea's workers are in trade unions, they are concentrated in key areas of the economy like ship building, engineering and electronics

on the move

Police repression against protestors last year

Politicians' racism sparks protests

ANTI-RACISTS in Australia have been hit-ting the streets in their tens of thousands to stop politicians scapegoating Asian im-to stop politicians scapegoating Asian im-migrants and Aborigines. There have been anti-racist demonstrations in every major city in Australia after newly elected independ-ent MP Pauline Hanson used her maiden speech in parliament to whip up racism. Hanson said, "We are in danger of being swamped by Asians" who "do not assimilate". One report found racist attacks against Asians dou-bled after Hanson's speech. Racist politicians crawled out of the woodwork to back Hanson up and demand an end to all immigra-tion and "multicultural" policies funded by the gov-ernment.

ernment. They also demanded that the newly elected Tory coalition government slash funds to Aborigine groups. Aborigines still face massive discrimination in Aus-tralia, with successive governments going back on claims for compensation for the Aborigine population who had their land stolen when the country was colo-nised nised. Tory prime minister John Howard refused to con-demn Hanson, said she had a right to "free speech" and then said immigrants do cause unemployment. This has stung anti-racists into action. In Melbourne more than 30,000 people joined a protest called by the unions and backed by 250 organisations. In Sydney 10,000 demonstrated and in Adelaide 3,000.

3.000 Around 1,000 marched through the heart of Hanson's constituency in Queensland.

constituency in Queensland. New Zealanders' illusions that proportional rep-resentation can deliver reforming governments was shattered by the final outcome of the New Zealand general election last week. The country went to the polls two months ago, with a majority in favour of kicking out the hated con-servative National Party government. An electoral system based on proportional repre-sentation was used for the first time after left wingers and various groups successfully campaigned for it as a way of "controlling" the major parties. But instead the poll delivered a hung parliament with the New Zealand First party holding the deci-sive votes.

sive votes. New Zealand First campaigned on a mixture of anti-Asian racism, increased public spending and Maori rights. But despite the fact that its leader, Winston Pe-ters, attacked the National Party, he has now decided to go into coalition with it. That means effectively another Tory government, despite most people voting to get the Tories out.

Zaire's rebels put ressure on Mobutu

AFRICAN governments gathered at a summit meeting before Christmas as the crisis in Zaire reached a new turning point. In the east of the coun-try a rebel movement has inflicted a series of de-feats on the army of Za-ire's dictator President Mobutu and on the Hutu militiamen who carried out genocide in Rwanda in 1994. The offensive, sparked by Mobutu's attempts to scapegoat people in an effort to hang on to power, was so effective that proposed Western intervention has now been called off.

But the forces fighting Mobutu are a mixture of two elements

Divides

On the one hand there is a genuine movement from below which brings together people across group, ethnic and reli-gious divides.

On the other hand the movement is influenced and supported by the governments of Rwanda, Uganda and Burundi.

These governments offer no real democracy and no challenge to the multinationals and the local rich. Behind them stand the United States govern-ment and its plans to build up a block of states under its influence to counter and supplant French power in the region.

Negotiate

The summit will in-crease pressure on

Mobutu to negotiate with the opposition, but it will also step up the coercion of the anti-Mobutu forces to rein back its demands.

Meanwhile Tanzania has expelled huge numbers of Hutu refugees who fled Rwanda in 1994. They were driven back to Rwanda at gunpoint, despite their fears that they face harsh treatment once they return home.

Strikers join anti Milosevic protests in Serbia AFTER FOUR weeks of Milosevic. The workers are show-

AFTER FOUR weeks of mass demonstrations every day in Serbia, the move-ment against President Milosevic looked much stronger in late December as eight factories came out on strike on strike.

Six factories are out in the capital, Belgrade, one in the industrial city of Nis and one in Mladenovac.

"The strikes are prima-"The strikes are prima-rily about pay and condi-tions, but we are support-ing the students and oppo-sition demands," said Mi-lan Nikolic of the metal workers' union workers' union.

Organised groups of workers joined the marches in Belgrade for the first time in December. "We were also here before as individuals, but for the first time we are how to dev first time we are here today in an organised way," said Rade Radovanovic.

"When the workers come out against you, you are finished," he warned

IN BRIEF

RUSSIAN MINERS

ended their ten day old strike to demand the payment of wage arrears last month. The miners' union ordered the return to ordered the return to work after action by 400,000 miners forced the government to promise to pay all wage arrears by the end of the year. Miners were joined in some areas by teachers and other public sector workers who are also owed wages. But the crisis hit government has bro-ken past promises to pay wage arrears, and widespread discon-tent in Ukoku to content is likely to con-

■OVER 20,000 peo-ple marched against Jean Marie Le Pen, the leader of France's Nazi National Front, in Grenoble on Mon-day of Lest month day of last month. The protest was one of the biggest ever against Le Pen, who was visiting the city to address a 500 strong address a 500 strong Nazi rally. The march was called by 70 organisa-tions, including the main trade union fed-erations, but was overwhelmingly made up of young people from schools and uni-versities. versities.

In recent weeks there have been a se-ries of mobilisations against Le Pen from Paris to Le Havre.

ing the potential for a movement that could not only topple Milosevic but also offer a way out from the poverty and despair in post-war Serbia and across ex-Yugoslavia. strikes. Instead they are in talks with John Kornblum. the US assistant secretary of state, and are hoping that Western governments will broker an agreement with Milosevic.

Talks

But opposition leaders are not focusing on the

PAGE SIX SOCIALIST WORKER

Dunnes Stores has never been famous for its generosity. Their workforce has had to mount two major national strikes over low pay and many still get only £3.50 an hour.

But the family know that paying out millions of pounds to politi-cians, planners and newspaper executives is better value than paying their workers decent wages and pensions. Ben Dunne gave Michael Lowry £208.000 pounds to do up his home

He gave over £1.1 million to a prominent Fianna Fail politician named by the Phoenix magazine as Squire Haughey. He gave £180,000 to the Fine Gael party and £15,000 to the Labour Party. That much we know. Now politi-

That much we know. Now politi-cians in the Dail have closed ranks to make sure the people who voted for them don't hear who else benefited from Ben Dunne's generosity. The Price Waterhouse report con-tains around 1,500 names of people who got money from Ben Dunne. Instead of publishing that report in full and letting people make up their own minds, the politiciansl pretend that there are 'complex legal issues' that there are 'complex legal issues' involved.

It is nonsense. A few weeks before the Dunnes scandal, the Criminal Assets Act was rushed through the Dail. This allows the state to seize docu-

This allows the state to serve docu-ments where they suspect fraud or drug dealing. This means the police could raid Dunnes headquarters in the morning and take away documents that help to trace the trail of bribery and cor-untion ruption.

And there is a lot they could find. Leaked reports to the press indicate that when Ben Dunnes was leaving the family company he signed a sen-sational affidavit containing even more detailed allegations about poli-ticiance as the take more detailed allegations about poli-ticians on the take. But none of the TDs want their cosy relationship with big business held up to public scrutiny. Not a single TD used their parlia-mentary privilege to read out the names of key people who got money off Dunnes. off Dunnes.

Big Business

All of them agreed with John Bruton that they should shut up about the names. This affair shows yet again that big business runs this country. But the Dunne's payments are just

But the Dunne's payments are just the tip of the iceberg. They only came into the open be-cause Ben Dunne has fallen out with his brothers and sisters. All big companies know that in-vesting in politicians makes sound fi-nancial sense.

nancial sense. In recent years the main political parties have miraculously cleared debts of £4.5 million pounds. Where did they get the money? In the eighties Larry Goodman gave over £200,000 to political par-ties.

In return he was allowed to mo-nopolise the Irish beef industry. When Ireland was fined for irregu-larities in Goodman's beef industry, Goodman did not have to pay a penny in damages. The bill was passed on to the Irish taxpayer. Politicians' claims that massive do-

The always tell workers who want more pay increases that "there is no such thing as a free lunch".

That's why they're so desperate to hide where their money comes from. Throughout the country thousands have signed petitions calling for the jailing of corrupt politicians.

Crime

It is the only way to prise open the tiny golden circle of establishment figures who have dominated Irish life. The politicians have been very quick to get on their high horses about social welfare fraud and crime. They run ominous ads every day on the radio warning of dire conse-quences for people who double job when on the dole.

But it is far worse to use an elected position to advance the interests of a wealthy backer. If and when they are found out there is only one place for this sort: behind bars.

DUNNES STORES pay minimal taxes. The company is organised into a trust so as 'to minimise its tax payments through legitimate means'.

Being a trust means that they are not liable for the capital acquisitions tax. This allows them to keep the wealth in the family over generations.

If they were taxed like other companies, it is estimated that Dunnes would have to pay £125 million in back taxes.

But successive governments in Dáil Éireann have allowed them to keep trust status.

When the scandal broke, Dunnes were even lobbying for another measure that would cut their tax bill by £80 million.

It is no wonder that they were willing to make a small investment in TDs.

The donations scandal shows why its time that the power of this family dynasty was broken.

Their house in Kinsealy con-

■ A 300 acre grounds with one of the finest rose gardens in Eu-

A freshwater lake which is the only one in North Dublin. A 'traditional Irish bar' designed by the architect Sam

Stephenson. Stables for a stud farm and Alongside the house, Charles Haughey owns an island off Kerry, known as Inishvickaune, which is valued at £250,000. His son Ciaran owns the 60ft yacht, Celtic Mist, valued at £250,000.

Wealth Most of this wealth, we are led to believe, was accumulated by a hard working accountant who started out in Haughey and Boland. For more than two decades the Haughey family dominated the politics of the northside of Dublin. They were renowned for small were always well paid. But they used the votes of work-ers to promote the interests of the rich and powerful.

They were renowned for small handouts to clubs and individuals.

Their canvassers in elections

even their own dairy.

tains

rope.

PDs: Not so clean ceived money from the mining company Tara Mines. The PD leader Mary Harney has claimed that Hong Kong is an ideal economy for Ireland to follow

Leave it in the left luggage...

DURING THE Dunnes scan-dal, the standing of the Pro-gressive Democrats rose dra-matically in the opinion polls. They have overtaken the La-bour Party and now command the support of 11% of the elec-torate.

HOW THE HAUGHEYS L

A lot of questions are now being asked about how the Haughey family got its wealth.

torate. The PDs try to present them-selves as different and cleaner than the other Dail parties. They even try to hide the links between their party and big business.

business. But the PDs also accept big donations from companies and refuse to reveal exactly who gave them money. The party will enter the next general election in a 'very healthy financial position' yet they have organised very few public collections. Most of their money comes from wealthy backers. One of the donations that became public was from Larry Goodman. He gave the party £20,000 in 1987. The former leader of the Pro-gressive Democrats, Des O'Malley, resigned soon after it was revealed that he re-

SEAN HAUGHEY, the Fianna Fail TD for Dublin North Central, got £10,000 off Ben Dunne. He has given no explanation to his constituents why he was worth so much. His father Charles Haughey, the former Fianna Fail leader, lives in unbelievable luxury in Kinsealy.

But unions there are se-verely restricted and political organisations are often fronts for private companies.

Pay Off

I'll get you

the goods next week

Dunnes work we're not a bit s That about sums tude of many Dunne the recent scandal. N real name) has be part-time for Dun part-time for pun years. "The two times we w always thought there coverage and politician the to say. It makes se dirty work. "If they're not gettir one company it's anot! Another worker, a agrees.

agrees. "When you see the gc ting money from Duni that's why we didn't g we needed when we we She says recent even her eyes. "We now know Pol help us, we didn't know

"Dunnes Store sho "Dunnes Store sho "Dunnes Store sho their workers firs. "They said they could pay us a couple of po week, but they're givin a million pounds to po a million pounds to po Dunnes worker strue year to force the ormpe pounds, to concrede base pounds the general port from the general point from the general poin

Pay Off The reality is that every party that supports capitalism gets money from the employers. Companies pay off politicians as a form of goodwill which will result in later favours here and there. All of this is covered over with the justification that com-panies get grants and tax breaks because of the 'na-tional interest'. When anyone attacked the Goodman empire, for exam-ple, the Fianna Fail leader Haughey accused them of 'na-tional sabotage'. The PDs can no more es-cape the stink of corruption than the Fianna Fail party from which they came.

"It's a kick in the

Just us

tens an twentie:

Ben

le beats them all

Just used tens and twenties now. Ben

The Dail Eireann price list John Bruton ivan Yates Michael Noonen Michael Noonan £3,000 10,000 . £1,000 Sean Haughey......£10,000 Colm Hilliard £1,000 Colm Filliard £1,000 C1,000

Ex Fianna Fail judge to investigate politicians!

BEN DUNNE's friends in the Dáil have promised to investigate the Price Waterhouse report. And like Dunnes Stores they believe in keeping it in the They've appointed Judge Gerard Buchanan to oversee the operation. They can trust him. He ran as a Fianna Fail candidate in the 1973 general election. The judge will select names from the report and pass them to a committee made up entirely of ..., you guessed it.... TD's. These politicians will then get down to the serious business of investigating themselves and their party col-

The public has been assured that this complex process will get to the bot-tom of the matter. Who are they trying to kid?

It's a kick in the teeth!' Dunnes workers

It's a kick in the teeth for Junnes workers, but ve're not a bit surprised.'

Ve're not aun surprised." That about sums up the atti-ude of many Dunnes workers to he recent scandal. Marie (not her real name) has been working part-time for Dunnes for two cears.

part-time we were on strike I ...The two times we were on strike I always thought there was very little always thought there was very little coverage and policians had very lit-coverage and policians had very lit-and very work. ...if they're not betting money from ...if they have the set of the set of Anoure, agrees, "When, ou see the government get-"When, ou see the government get-ting "none, found Dunnes, you think ting "none, found Dunnes, you think ting "none, found Dunnes, you think ting "store of the government get-that's why when we were on strike." we needed when events have opened She says the Dollies... s politicians won't know that at the

her eyes Store should look after help us time ers the couldn't afford to of pounds extra a giving a quarter of to politicians." struck earlier this mpany, which has pover of a billion e basic rights such act hours and sick t tremendous sup-eral public.

Both women say industrial rela-tions in the company are as bad as ever.

The shop steward says workers who joined the company before Oc-tober '94 are being victimised betober cause they're too expensive. She cites the case of one woman who's worked for the company since

THE LABOUR Party made major gains in the 1992

elections when they promised to break the golden circle that linked big business to the Dáil.

taken money from Ben Dunne to help finance Mary Robinson's election cam-

While they pretended to support the Dunnes strikers who came out against the use of South African apartheid produce, their leaders were approaching Ben Dunne for money noney. No wonder they now sit

But now it has been revealed that they have since then she's not allowed to do her work unless there is a manager by her side.

Contempt

1984. She made a small mistake and

"They treat their workers with contempt", says Marie.

She says the company gave £500 worth of Dunnes Stores vouchers and a thank you note to all members of management who had gone to work during the monet strike.

why we need an ve to La back and join the rest of the parties in organising a cover-up of the present scandal. The attitude of the Labour Party shows that a real socialist alternative is now needed. It has to be one that will take out companies like Dunnes rather than try to appeal to them.

Attitude

The Socialist Workers Party has never received a single penny from big business. We don't want their money because we know it always comes with strings. Our attitude to the Dunnes, Goodman and O'Reilly is one of implacable hostility.

<text><text><text><text>

What do socialists say? Is the state neutral

"I AM not on any side. I'm just here to enforce the law," says the cop harass-ing the picket line. "The civil service is impartial. Its role is sim-Working class people Working class people Working class people Through the structure gives the te to this mynt. Working class people know in court there is one law for the rich and one for the poor. Workers on picket lines soon learn that the police consistently ply to serve the elected government of the day," says the school politics text book.

Such claims are part of a political myth of capitalist society—t the state is neutral. -that

Masks

The state is the interlocking network of insti-tutions which stand above society and exer-cise general authority over it—the armed forces, police, judiciary and top civil service buthat judges are biased or that bureaucrats are cold and inhuman. But they also believe somewhere out there is a state structure which serves the public as a whole reaucracies

The idea that this network is neutral is crucial to the capitalist whole Karl Marx, however, did generalise. One of his most important contribuclass because it masks their immense political power. It is also crucial to the tions was to cut through the whole idea of the state being neutral. He argued that, in the final analysis, political power in all societies rests on economic claim that our society is a democracy—ruled by the people. Since there is no democracy whatever in the armed forces. police or any other state institu-tion, it is essential to power trols the means of pro-duction—and thus the bulk of wealth in sociclaim that they are neu-tral servants of the pub-lic for the notion of de-mocracy to have any ety-also controls the state.

credibility. Finally, the idea of the state s neutrality is funda-mental to the Labour sure the continuance of the economic system over which it presides and as a weapon to hold Party. Democratic Left and all similar parties. Ever since its founda-tion the Labour Party has down the exploited and believed the way to change society is to win elections and form the state of the slave owning patricians. In the middle ages it was the state of the feudal aristocracy. government. This government. This government will then use its control of the state machine to run so-ciety more fairly and effi-Today it is the state of the capitalist class. Capitalist control of the state is exercised in ciety more fairly and effi-ciently. This strategy only makes sense if the gov-emment really does con-trol the state and if the state is a neutral appa-ratus which will do the bidding of its supposed "political masters". In fact the everyday experience of working class people repeatedly Through its personnel. ■Through its personnel. The vast majority of those in senior positions in the state—senior army officers, high court judges and permanent secretaries—are drawn secretaries—are drawn from the capitalist class. They went to the same expensive schools and in the state as a whole. They often believe their local police are bad, Through the objective role of the state in society. The state rests upon a capitalist economy.

 Through the structure and ideology of the state institutions.
 These are all strictly hierarchical and control-led from the top.
 Even when odd indi-viduals from working class backgrounds gain advancement within the state it is only on condithe police consistently defend the bosses. However, workers offrom their personal expe-riences to draw conclu-sions about the nature of state it is only on condi-tion that they accept completely the capitalist ideology of the state.

Economy

But a capitalist conomy functions only economy functions only on capitalist principles. If the state ever tries to go against capitalist interests the economy will start to break down. This gives the capitalist class enormous lever-age over the state. Even if parts of the state apparatus fall out of the direct control of the capitalist class they can still use their economic power to keep the state in line and ensure it serves their interests. Karl Marx drew a conclusion of the utmost importance to socialists from this understanding of the class nature of the state.

oppressed classes. Thus, in the Roman Empire, the state was the It was that the work-ers' movement cannot simply take over the existing state machine and use it for its own purposes.

poses. Instead, the only way workers can control so-ciety is by destroying the old capitalist state and old capitalist state and creating a new state ap-paratus based on their own organisations and arising out of their own struggle. This has always been the fundamental differ-ence between revolution.

ence between revolution-ary Marxists and reform-ists of every kind.

The class that con-

It uses the state to enduring the recent strike. "That really annoyed me," says Marie who earns around £3.50 an hour, "Coming up to Christmas I could do with £500."

Rome's Colosseum. What made the empire fall?

STARVATION, disease, war, unemployment and political turmoil.

That is a picture of late 20th century capitalism but it also describes the collapse of the Roman Empire in the fifth century AD.

Ancient Rome highlights the Ancient Rome highlights the way that societies have risen throughout history, rlourished and been destroyed. It has clear lessons for us today. That great socialist Karl Marx observed that any given soci-ety develops until it reaches the limits of the way it organ-ises production

Then there is either a revo-lution which overthrows the old ruling order and estab-lishes a new mode of produc-tion or there is "the mutual ruin of the two contending the two contending of Marx had in mind the transformation from capitalism to socialism but the decline and fall of the Roman Empire illu-minates his thinking.

ROME EMERGED about 2,500 years ago and came to dominate the Mediterranean world until the fifth century AD.

The society was based on the ex-ploitation of slave labour in agriculture

There were always large numbers of small farmers working plots of land, but it was gangs of slaves on great country estates which provided the Roman ruling class with its wealth and underpinned the military and po-litical expansion of Rome.

and underpinned the military and po-litical expansion of Rome. One historian estimates that in 225 BC there were 4.4 million free people living in Italy and 600,000 slaves. By 43 BC there were probably 4.5 million free peo-ple and three million slaves. Over this same period Rome was trans-formed from a peripheral power to one which subdued its rivals in Italy and chal-lenged the older and richer emoires cenlenged the older and richer empires cen-tred on what is now the Middle East and Tred on what is now and Egypt. For 300 years Roman society flour-ished. Cities grew, supplied with water by aqueducts and connected by roads. In literature and art Roman intellectu-als took over and developed the culture of the earlier Greek city states. This same period saw a modest but sig-mificant advance in technology, particnificant advance in technology, partic-ularly on the land-the most important area of production. Economic growth was, however, on nothing like the scale of the last 200 years. The ancient economy was fantastically

by KEVIN OVENDEN

wasteful in comparison with even the crazy standards of modem capitalism. Today most of the profit capitalists screw out of workers is reinvested in new means of production. In the ancient world, however, the bulk of the surplus product nowever, the bulk of the surplus product was consumed by the rich. Roman society reached a high point in the second century AD but then became gripped by an all encompassing crisis which continued for the next three centuries

It was rooted in the mechanism which had made Rome so successful in the first place—production based on slavery. This mode of production placed limits on technological innovation

LAVERY IS efficient for Skilled work which can be supervised at a distance by a single overseer. But to get the most out of sophisticated tools requires some degree of commitment from the labourer.

So there was no incentive to go beyond basic improvements and intro-duce new techniques in the ancient slave based economics.

The most common way slave owners attempted to increase the output of their land was simply to make slaves work harder rather than try to find labour saving innovations.

There were other inbuilt limits to the generalised use of slaves in production

It was far cheaper to capture adult slaves through wars than for Rome's rulers to raise slave children who would be unproductive in their early years. That meant there was constant pressure to replenish the stock of slaves by military expansion.

Huge resources were diverted from developing the economic heart of society into financing an enormous army. Through the period of Rome's expan-sion one in ten of all free adult males were in the legions at any one time. The army was composed of conscripted peasants. When they returned from five years service they usually found their land occupied by an unscrupulous landlord and worked by slaves. The landless poor drifted into the cit-ies driving the pooulation of Pormune to ies, driving the population of Rome up to over 750,000—a staggering figure when the total population of Italy was about eight million.

eight million. There was little industry in the cities. Most of the urban poor remained unpro-ductive and dependent on free grain dis-tributed by the state to head off food riots. tributed by the state to head off food riots. Even after the Roman Empire reached the geographical limits of its expansion in the third century AD it was forced to keep a massive number of men in uniform to defend its borders and crush internal dissent. As one historian put it, "Most states have an army. The Roman army had a state."

HE END of Rome's wars of conquest led to a shortage of slaves. Ag-ricultural output fell as the price of slaves rose. Corn prices rocketed to 200 times what they had been two centuries earlier.

The currency, the silver denarius, was repeatedly devalued until it was worth only 5 percent of its value during the early centuries of the empire. Famine, closely followed by plague, laid waste large parts of the empire. The economic stagnation intensified the conflict within the ruling class which was now drawn not only from Rome but army from every land in the empire. In the 50 years from AD 235 to AD 284 there were 20 emperors of whom only three died a natural death. In AD 283-4 there was a series of risings by the rural poor in what are now France and Spain.

HE EMPIRE was saved from immediate collapse by Diocietian, made emperor in AD 284, and by his successors. The measures they took fended off the immediate crisis but accelerated the underlying drift towards collapse.

450,000 men—and increased again to over 600,000 in the closing years of pressure on the economic base of so-of society. In AD 312 the emperor Constantine quelled this turmoil by adopting Christi-anity—one of the increasingly popular brands of eastern mysticism—as the offi-cial religion of the empire. The growing Christian prior theory

The growing Christian priesthood helped to stabilise imperial rule but it also added to the parasitic burden on the wealth added to the parasitic burster of a producing economy. Towards the end of the Roman Empire the state took between a quarter and a third of agricultural output in taxes.

The small farmers, who had been spared extortionate taxes when the labour of slaves was enough to provide for their masters, now found taxes pushing them below subsistence level.

Their legal rights as Roman citizens were eroded until they were little better than slaves.

Even the moderately rich found the tax Even the moderately rich found the tax collector taking more and more to pay for the army, the church and the conspicuous consumption of the very rich. Class an-tagonism and conflict intensified. The urban population fell as city dwell-ers reversed the journey of their ancestors and returned to the land where they hoped to staw off ctaryction.

to stave off starvation.

Political power shifted from the im-perial palace to armed frontier encampments which through diplomacy and force when the invading Germanic tribes crossed the Danube in AD 407 they con-fronted an empire which existed in name but which no section of society was prepared to defend.

The economic underpinnings of the bloated imperial superstructure had rotted away. The western half of the Roman Empire succumbed very quickly. The east-ern half, centred on Constantinople, managed to adapt and survive.

In the five centuries following the fall

In the five centuries following the fair of Rome a new way of organising pro-duction emerged in western Europe. In the dying decades of the Roman Empire there had already been a shift away from slavery towards production based on peasant households which were tied to the land and owed allegiance to a local lord. Both serfs and local lords had an inter-

Both serfs and local lords had an interest in introducing new productive tech-over time this system—feudalism—replaced the remnants of slavery. Feudalism—re-placed the remnants of slavery. Feudal-ism developed productivity and carried society forward before it ran up against the particular limits of its own form of ex-ploitation and was itself thrown into an epoch of crisis.

ATE TWENTIETH century capitalism is in deep cri-isis. Like the later Roman Empire this crisis affects all areas of society and is drawn out over a period of time.

Now, as then, our rulers' attempts to shore up their system bring short term relief but make the overall crisis worse

But the advances in production of the intervening 1,500 years mean the crisis of capitalism does not have to be resolved by introducing a new ex-be resolved by introducing a new ex-ploitative system. We have the means to give everyone a decent standard of living. The modern working class, like the an-cient slaves and peasants, is exploited. But unlike them it has the potential to organise independently of all sections of the rich to fight to abolish class society.

The army doubled in size to the empire. That was enough to suppress the immediate military threat from within and without but it led to even more ciety. The number of provinces was doubled to over 100. This made them more man-ageable but intensified the rivalry between different nobles and officials. The economic crisis had led to a crisis of ideas as people lost faith in the tradi-tional religions and ways of making sense

book

Clann na Poblachta; Republicans making their peace with the system

Archbishop McQuaid who demanded the Mother and Scheme be scrapped. McBride failed to support Browne against the bishops

AT THE end of World War II a new political force entered Irish politics. There was disil-lusionment with Fianna Fail who had been in power since 1932 and within a short space of time Clann na Poblachta emerged as a potential rival.

tential rival. The Clann was founded by former members of the IRA. One of its most charismatic characters was Sean McBride, son of John McBride who was killed in 1916. McBride became Chief of Staff of the IRA in the 1930s. But like Gerry Adams today, he wanted a way out of the militant Republicanism of the past. After Fianna Fail introduced a new Constitution in 1937, he saw an opportunity to go down a different road. Many Republicans followed him into the Clann, hop-ing to give Republicans a voice in the Dail. The Clann promoted politics that were similar to those of Fianna Fail when they were founded in 1926. They were based on a mixture of 'real republicanism' and social justice. At first the Clann won tremendous support. TDs like Noel Browne who took on the terrible problems of TB by opening new hospitals struck won genuine sympa-thy. But soon the honeymoon came to an end. McBride thy. But soon the honeymoon came to an end. McBride fell out with Browne over the Mother and Child contro-versy, which tried to give voluntary ante- and post-natal care for mothers, along with free medical care for all children under the age of 16 with no means test. The Catholic Church opposed the measure because they hated any idea of a welfare state. McBride always saw himself as a good Catholic and never in anyway sought to denounce the Church, even though the Church and Fianna Fail ran a red scare campaign against the Clann's policies.

Fell apart

road. But none of them seek to break the power of capi-talism through the organised power of workers. This is why they compromise with the powerful. It is a les-son that is very relevant for today. The Clann is a brilliant read. It's full of the period which was a crossroads in Ireland. If you want to read about the story of the Clann, this comes very highly recommended.—GINO KENNY ■The Clann, by Kevin Rafter, Mercier Press £9.99

The Spice Cirls—push So the Spice Cirls—think that Margaret Thatcher is great. "We Spice Girls are true Thatcherities," Spice Cirl Gerri said re-cently. " she was the first Spice Cirl, the pio-neer of our ideology." I suppose it shouldn't really be that surprising. After all, the Spice "Ideology" fits quite nicely with Thatcherism—it's Eventually when the Coalition government fell in 1951 the party saw a dramatic fall in its vote. Its only TDs who did well were those who stood up against the Church on the Mother and Child Scheme. After this, the party fell apart amidst splits and disil-lusionment and was finally dissolved in 1965. The Clann's biggest mistake was not to take on the power of the Church. The consequences were that the Church dominated the scene for decades. The experience exposed the limits of republicanism. Republican movements often move away from armed struggle to constitutional politics by promising to pro-mote more social justice. Fianna Fail, Clann na Poblachta and the Workers Party have all taken this road.

The Last of the High Kings reviewed by DAVE McDONAGH Spacehoppers to the sleaze of Fianna Fail IF YOU want to see an absolute cracker of a movie then The Last of the High Kings is the one to go for.

film

It is based on Ferdia MacAnna's novel of the same name and is set in Howth, Co Dublin in the summer of 1977, around the time of Elvis Presley's death

It tells the story of sev-enteen year old Frankie who is determined to enjoy the few months he has left before his dreaded Leaving Cert result results.

Weird

But first he has his completely weird family to deal with. father, Frankie's

рор

Sugar and spice rebels played by Gabriel Byrne, is an actor who makes a dramatic entry before swanning off abroad to star in yet another play. Frankie's mother is a nationalist biod who ho nationalist bigot who be-lieves her children are descended from the High Kings of Ireland. She commands them to march up and down the wall overlooking the Protestant neighbours' house because she won't be lectured by 'blow-ins'.

Furious

She is furious when Frankie refuses to chaperone an Irish American cheerleader who comes to stay with the family and even fetches the priest when Frankie loses his virginity with a 'Protestant slut'. The film celebrates teenage rebellion against authority and against authority and pulsates with music from the likes of Thin Lizzy, Elvis Costello and Mott the Hoople. It captures the atmos-phere of the time in which it is set, complete with references to Carrie at the Savoy Cinema, the election of Jimmy Carter as US President and the 'spacehoppers' and the 'spacehoppers' craze.

But this is no mere trip into seventies nostalgia. For The Last of the High Kings has a politi-cal edge that fits per-fectly with the events of the mid 1990s.

One of the central characters is local poli-tician Jim Davern, played by Colm Meaney. He is a sleazy and lecherous Fianna Fail Dwith a base in Dub TD with a base in Dub-lin's Northside (not that he bears any resem-blance to any former FF blance to any former FF-leader we know of!). Frankie's mother is Davern's biggest fan and drags Frankie and his mate to the polling booth to vote for him even though both are under age even though both are under age. She is thrilled when Davern decides to cel-ebrate his victory at her house in Howth where she leads the guests in a rousing rendition of 'A Nation Once Again'. The parallels with re-cent events in Ireland will not be lost on audi-ences—the same ences—the same sleazy politicians clam-bering to the top with the help of nationalist rhetoric and backhanders.

Through Frankie's re-bellion the film reminds bellion the film reminds us how a new genera-tion has begun to throw off the shackles of the past by challenging the authority of the Church and the hypocrisy of the politicians.

Above all The Last of the High Kings is full of laughs and manages to be a 'feelgood movie' without being over sen-timental timental.

Go and see it at least twice

by ROISIN CRONIN

somewhere along the way managed to get some credability. Those people at the New Music Express put them on their cover not only because they reckon they make pre-fect pop, but also be-cause they like their at-titude.

The Spice Girls-pushing a pretty reactionary message about getting out there and making things happen for yourself. Except that the Spice Girls are hipper than Margaret Thatcher ever

One of the strangest things about the Spice Girls phenomenan is that these women have

It's as if some people really do think that they have something to say. Spice Girls are being presented in some quar-ters as the true embodi-ment of feminism in the nineties.

Except we are not talk-ing about angry young women fighting for their rights. With the Spice Girls, feminism is FUN.

Their Girl Power is about asserting yourself in a tough world. The Spice Girls have taken on an industry that's always been domi-nated by men. Spice Power means they are in control. At least that's what their manager and their

At least that's what their manager and their record company and their marketing manager told them to say. Because the funny thing is that Spice Girls are every bit as manu-factured as the likes of Boyzone.

Just like Boyzone they were formed in re-sponse to an ad for fresh new talent. And from then on everything they do has been choreographed and perfectly planned. Another crucial part of Spice Power is asserting your sexuality.

UDJECTS Here again they reckon they are in con-trol. Except of course they are not. In a world where women are viewed as sex objects and com-modities, Girl Power does nothing to chal-lenge that sexism. Sex sells Spice Girl Power bespite their image the Spice Girls are no rebels. Although music journalists seem intent on telling us otherwise, beneath the dreadful music, the Spice Girls are pushing a pretty re-actionary message.

Objects

nt system cannot be but of existence. t cannot be used to rmy and po defend the s of the capitalist of the capitalist It to run society in a ashion asmon. oy capitalism, a need to smash the d create a workers' sed on workers'

REAL SOCIAL WEST: SWP welcomed the K-up of the USSR and the of the East European latorships. These states atorships. These states capitalist clas sciple

e against the domina-f the globe by ialist powers and we se their wars. We are for jht of all nations, East lest, to self-determina-

FOR AN END TO ALL OPPRESSION We oppose all forms of oppression which divide and weaken the working class. We are for full social, economic and political equality for women.

men. e stand for: free contracep-n and free, legalised ortion and the right to force; the complete

i and arternym to the church and over schools and is; an end to nation against gays plans; an end to and anti-traveller an end to chi argue for working class ty in the fight against

R WORKERS' UNITY IN E NORTH: IORTH: ern Ireland is a rian state, propped up British Army. Ilic workers are tholic workers are stematically discriminated ainst by the state. The dision between Catholic and betstant workers weakens whole working class. orkers' unity can only be n and maintained in a light smash both the Northern d Southern states. stand for the immediate hidrawal of British troops. blence will only end when rkers' republic.

OR A FIGHTING TRADE

Alon, and the second se

FORAREVOLUTIONARY

VEMENT: ns exist to defend iterests. But the ers' role is to uth canitalism----

FOR REAL SOCIALISM. EAST

Stop the execution where we stand of Brian Roberson kers create all the wealth apitalist society. A new lety can only be structed when they ectively seize control of wealth and plan its duction and distribution. FOR REVOLUTION, NOT ON THE 24th January, Brian Roberson, scheduled for is execution in an American prison for a crime he did not commit. He has been on death row in Texas for ten years—fac-ing an imminent threat of death at periodic intervals.

His story can be repeated with some variations prob-ably for many of the 3,000 Death Row inmates across the U.S.A. Brian is black. When he was 20 years of age he went out clubbing with his friend Daryll one night. On their way home they stopped off for a quick piss an alley. Unbeknown to them a few up blocks away near where Daryl's van was parked an elderly white man was murdered dered. A few days later Daryl was taken into custody under sus-picion of the murder. He died in custody. Brian didn't even know he was arrested until he heard of his death.

Evidence

The police found out that Brian was with Daryl that night and arrested him. Two years later without any substantial evidence—any substantial evidence— Brian's fingerprints were not found on the murder weapon and there was no positive identification of him at the murder site-Brian was sentenced to death by execution under the law of the State of Texas.

The main body of evidence against him was that he had been a disruptive teenager and that he had been dis-turbed by the fact that his own father had been murdered by a white man years earlier. It was claimed that Brian had wanted to seek reverge. His mother, Betty Roberson, has now sold her house to pay for his legal fees and at present Brian has had 5 stays of execution. Each time he appeals on different legal ground— which costs huge sums of money.

Campaigning against the death penalty in Texas

Brian talks of the barbaric prison regime: "I am allowed out during the weekdays for a period of only three hours

"I live in a six foot by nine foot cell. The cell is equipped with a toilet attached to the wall. There are two bunks. There is a light and two shelves above the door". More worryingly there is much concern over supple-ments which are added to prison food. Since March 1995 Vita-Pro has been added to prison food nationwide. Many prisoners and guards base here agating extremely have been getting extremely ill. ill. This is a soya-bean com-pound and when it first ar-rived in prisons it was la-belled 'not fit for human consumption'.

Regime

The barbaric prison regime obviously does not consider the prisoners 'human'. Unfortunately for Brian, Texas has executed the most prisoners since the re-intro-duction of the death penalty.

Executions in Texas account for 32.7% of all executions. Brian Roberson is a very brave man. His time in prison has politicised him and made has politicised him and made him aware of the class and racist nature of Amerikkka (as he calls it). He says 'In any part of the world, as long as these type of regimes are in power, these conditions will continue to be continuon. Only true revolu-tion, waged by the exploited masses, will bring about the end of this worldwide'. Like many others he wants to build a revolutionary movement that will relegate the gas chamber, the electric the gas chamber, the electric chair and the lethal injection machine to the museum where they belong. Brian is Prisoner #886*, Ellis 1 Prison, Huntsville,

Texas

barbarism

THE US President, Bill Clinton, has championed the death penalty and even ordered the execution of a men-tally retarded man in his home state of Arkansas. The death penalty is outlawed in most 'developed' countries of the world. The U.S. however manages, to go one step further. It is one of only four countries worldwide who en-force the death penalty for juveniles. Since 1990, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Yemen all have executed 1 juve-nile each, the United States has executed 6 juveniles. However, the Death Penalty was not always part of the U.S. legislation. The Death Penalty was temporar-ily stopped in 1972 on the heels of the anti-war move-ment, the civil rights movement and the Black Power movement.

movement. When there is an upturn in class struggle it has a direct effect on the way racism and barbarism is challenged in society.

Racisn nn Death Ro

84% of prisoners executed in America since 1977 were convicted of murdering white victims despite the fact that blacks and whites are the victims of homicide in roughly equal numbers. Numerous studies have shown that murders involving white victims are far more likely to result in death sentences than those involving black victims.

In Brian's case, the white man who murdered his father got 13 years sentence in prison and was released after 2 or 3 years yet Brian auto-matically got the death sentence.

from SWP branches News IF you hate the politicians BELFAST Meets every Wed at 8pm Central Hall Rosemary St. join the SWP But they will also organisation as a argue that parliament can only be used to give voice to the whole is well on target to begin to CORK Meets every Tues at 8pm in Dennehy's Pub, Commarket St. "You will be charged with incite-ment if you go on with this meeting" said the Garda "And who are we inciting hatred against?" aske "asked

HTY: win socialism socialists ed to organise in a olutionary party. This party eds to argue against right-gj ideas and for overthrow-ihe system. The SWP is to build such a party in and. Brid Smith, who JOIN THE SOCIALISTS

If you want to join Socialist Worker, fill in this form and send it to: PO Box 1648, Dublin 8, Tel: (01) 872 2682

Name
Address
Phone

was chairing the meeting. "Against politi-cians" came the reply. Over a hundred people gathered in North Earl St in Dublin in December to insist on the SWP's right to hold a street meeting on the corruption scandal. Ten people joined the party immedi-ately afterwards.

The scandals in Dail Eireann show why it is so urgent to build an alternative. In the next general lection a number of SWP candidates will be running.

They are pledged to expose the privi-lege and corruption in Dail Eireann.

anger outside. It is not the place where real changes in society can be organised from. The SWP is now engaged in a rapid recruitment campaign to drive home the message that corruption is rooted in capitalism and can only be ended when working class people struggle against the system that breeds it.

Target

In December, the party set a target of recruiting 70 new members by the new year.

The shift in the political atmosphere means that all branches have now begun to recruit. The expand. But already the scale of anger in Irish society has meant that our previous objectives

DEBRY

Meets every Tues in Badgers Bar at 8pm

DUN LAOGHAIRE

DUNDALK

GALWAY

ENNISKILLEN

Meets every Tues at 8pm in Smyths Pub.

Meets every Weds at 1pm in Dundalk RTC

Meets every fortnight Contact national address for

Meets every Thursday at 7.30pm in Currans Hotel. Eyre Square LIMERICK

Meets every Tuesday at 8pm in Costello's Tavern, Dominick St

MAYNOOTH Contact 8722682 for details previous objectives are far too modest. In the North, the logic of Paisleyism is there for all to see in Harryville. In the South, the burning issue is who will fill the vacuum left by Labour's betrayals. What is needed now is a party of now is a party of several hundreds for

This is why: Every supporter of the party will now get a New Year's message making a direct appeal to get direct appeal to get involved.

On street sales in the New Year, the SWP will also be engaged in a major recruitment drive.

SWP branch meetings

WATERFORD Meets every Thursday at 8pm in ATGWU Hall, Keyser St. DUBLIN NORTH-WEST Meets every Tuesday at 8:30pm in The Old Brogue, Dorset St. DUBLIN A ST

DUBLIN ARTANE/ COOLOCK Meets every Thursday at 8.00pm Contact 8722682 for detaile for deta

DUBLIN DRIMNAGH Meets every Tuesday at 8.30pm in the Black Forge (formerly the Bentley), Drimnagh Rd

DUBLIN NORTH CENTRAL Meets every Wed at 8:30pm in Conways, Parnell St. DUBLIN RATHMINES Meets every Wed at 8pm in O'Connells Pub, Richmond St

DUBLIN SOUTH CENTRAL Meets every Thur at 8pm in the Trinity Inn, Pearse St. DUBLIN TALLAGHT/ CLONDALKIN Meets Tues Tallaght Welfare Society, Tallaght Village.

There are Socialist Worker members in: COLERAINE; LURGAN; CAVAN; DONEGAL; NAAS; KILKENNY; DUNDALK; ATHLONE; DROGHEDA. If you would like to get in touch, contact our national office at (01) 872 2682, PO Box 1648, Dublin 8

news & reports politics; the unions send in your reports telephone: (01) 872 2682, fax: (01) 872 3838 ICTU TRIES TO RUSH THROUGH PARTNERSHIP 2000

THE TRADE Union leaders are trying to rush through a new national through a new national pay deal to replace the PCW. Ballotting on 'Partnership 2000' takes place in January fol-lowed by a special ICTU confer-ence at the end of the month. The deal is being hailed as a new 'social contract' but should be called the 'social con-trick'. We are supposed to be im-

We are supposed to be im-pressed with the combination of pay increases and tax cuts on of-fer but these amount to very little and there are major strings attached.

The main points of the deal

PRIVATE SECTOR: Increases of 2.5 per cent in January 1997, 2.25 per cent in January 1998,

2.25 per cent in January 1998,
1.5 per cent in January 1999 and one per cent in September 1999. These are tiny increases when you consider that inflation is now running at 1.9 per cent. IPUBLIC SECTOR: An increase of 2.5 per cent on the first £200 a week in July 1997 with 2.5 per cent on the balance in April 1998. This will be followed by 2.25 per cent in July 1998, 1.5 per cent in July 1999 and one per cent in April 2000. ILOCAL BARGAINING: A local bargaining increase of up to cal bargaining increase of up to two per cent is on offer in both sectors but the bosses will try to squeeze out more productivity in return for this.

In the Public Sector the two per cent will be subject to proof of increased productivity. TAX CUTS: The lower rate of income tax will be cut by a mi-serly one per cent to 26 per cent serly one per cent to 26 per cent but there will be no cut in the top rate of 48 per cent.

Bosses

Meanwhile the bosses will get away with a reduction on Corpo-ration Profits Tax and PRSI payments

Bruton, Qinn and Bruton address the talks cruiting yellowpacks on even

The deal will leave thousands of workers on poverty wages. It does nothing to force employers to pay a minimum wage and will not stop them from re-lower rates of pay. Above all the new programme is an insult to workers who have created huge profits for the rich in recent years. Instead of selling this deal to their members, trade union leaders should be organising a fight for decent pay in every job.

n to the Social Con Tri BEAT

Trade unionists should be organising now to defeat Partnership 2000. This time there is a better chance than ever before of winning a NO vote. Workers are increasingly bitter that they have gained nothing from three previous deals over the past ten years. Profits have soared but wages have fallen far behind. Above all the programme can be beaten because groups of workers have begun to see the alternative posed by militancy.

the alternative posed by militancy. From the victorious strike at the Royal Dublin Hotel to the threat of action bus workers which forced the payment of an overdue increase, there are signs of a return to struggle. Every activist should campaign for a NO vote on the new deal but this should go hand in hand with building support for workers in strugsupport for workers in strug-gle.

Order VOTE NO leaflets from SWP, PO Box 1648, Dublin 8, Tel (01) 872 2682 need of resolution. But the Department—under the con-trol of Labour's Naimh

Breathnach has done noth ing. Only when a one-day strike was called last month did the Department agree to last-minute talks with the Teachers Union of Ireland which represents most of the dragging its feet, afraid that if the Youthreach staff win parity with teachers, the Department will use this as an excuse to erode teachers' working conditions to the level suffered by Youthreach

But the TUI leadership is

staff

staff

HICH SIDE ARE THE ICTU leaders have divorced themselves from the anger of thousands of workers and have tied themselves into government policy. For the past few months they have been cob-bling together another lousy pay deal instead of leading the opposition to the government. The ICTU's silence over the Dunnes Stores scandal was remarkable. Instead of mounting demonstrations against the corrupt politicians the union leaders were inside government build-ings stitching up a new programme. The ICTU stayed silent when Proinsias De Rossa launched his attack on the unemployed. This has paved the way for measures to force people into low paid jobs - in turn this will push down wages, just like the Job Seekers' Allow-ance in the North. THE ICTU leaders have divorced themselves ting us to work harder for longer hours, with The union leaders' commitment to 'social partnership' is really a commitment to manag-ing Irish capitalism.

Qualify

They have accepted the limits on public spending needed to qualify for European Mon-etary Union. But EMU has led to big attacks on etary Union, But EMU has led to big attacks on workers' living standards throughout Europe, resulting in huge struggles in France, Germany and elsewhere. Partnership 2000 will further extend 'social partnership' into individual enterprises. The unions will promise to negotiate 'change' in re-turn for local pay increases. But 'change' is simply a buzzword for get-cuts in overtime and other allowances. In short it means increasing profits by squeezing work-ers even harder. To add to this pressure we will be encour-

To add to this pressure we will be encour-aged to own shares in the companies we work for. But this means that workers will be told they have to give more concessions in order to improve their 'stake' in the business. There will even be a new National Centre for Partnership which will offer joint training for union officials and human resource managers! But how can workers be partners with the likes of Dunnes Stores or Tony O'Reilly? These people gain their wealth by exploiting workers and so-called 'partnership' will only increase that exploitation.

SIPTU

An end to the situation where up to 50% of staff in some hospitals are on

NURSING ALLIANCE

Nurses have been balloting on strike action after turning down another mis-erable offer from Ruairi Quinn.

Nurses are now looking for three main improvements.

They want:

The abolition of pay cuts for young nurses who come out of college.

The right to retire at 55. They want parity with psy-chiatric nurses who can retire at this point.

Proper pay increases for those at the lower end of

THE THREAT of all-out ac-tion on the buses and rail-way forced CIE manage-ment to back down in De-cember. The company tried to refuse to pay a 2.5% pay rise due under the national wage agreement from Octo-wage agreement from Octo-wage agreement from Octo-ber. The Labour Court inter-vened and urged the unions to postpone strike action pending their decision. But immediately the Na-tional Locomotive Drivers Committee—a rank and file group of train drivers—de-manded the company agree

INO

■Last year's nurses' rallies

the scale The deal that Quinn offered gave pay increases to those at the top of the

A national strike of nurses would galvanise the trade union movement. Already there are indica-tions that it would be hugely popular.

A poll in the Sunday In-dependent has shown that 77% of the population would support the nurses if the strike goes ahead.

The main danger now is to stop the leaders of the Irish Nurses Organisation trying to patch up another rotten compromise springboard from which to fight the Viability Plans which CIE now want to im-plement from March 31. A Dublin Bus driver

A DUDIIN BUS driver spoke to Socialist Worker: 'The unions begin nego-tiating on these plans in January and rank and file CIE workers need to get or-ganised to prevent any union cancersions on iobe wares concessions on jobs, wages and conditions. 'We have formed an Ac-tion Group in Dublin Bus to fight the viability plan and to fight for an all-out bus and rail shut down if any group of CIE workers is attacked'.

and conditions.

ALMOST 700 workers in 65 Youthreach centres around the country have bal-loted for strike action over a longstanding claim for better pay and conditions.

Youthreach was set up as a temporary scheme to cater for early school leavers from disadvantaged backgrounds who had nothing to look forward to but long-term unem-

Dublin Corporation

have won acceptance of a produc-tivity deal by its craft workers.

ployment. But now, seven yeas on, highly motivated and dedi-cated staff who run the scheme are still all employed on temporary one-year contracts

YOUTHREACH

WORKERS VOTE FOR

STRIKE ACTION

Unlike school teachers, Youthreach staff get no sal-ary increments and have no pension rights.

Grievances

They work a longer week (35 hours) and much longer year (48 weeks) than teach-ers but for much lower wages. A confidential report, written by consultants for the Department of Education last April, acknowledged that all the staffs'grievances were genuine and in urgent

DUBLIN CORPORATION

this attack on conditions with UCATT, for example, voting 31 to 21 against. One UCATT member told Socialist Worker: "I see the deal as the thin end of the wedge. The trade union leaders played on divisions between tradesmen and general workers. "Instead of colluding with management and with management and ecouraging bickering between different groups of workers, the trade union leads should be giving a lead." Following last month's Craft workers. The core of the deal is an attack on demarcation and increased flexibility with painters doing the work of carpenters etc. Union leaders backed the deal and with the offer of a £200 cash payment before Chistmas the deal was accepted by281 to 163. Despite this there was considerable opposition to rejection by general workers of a productivity deal one worker de-scribed the mood as "very militant". But the fear is the deal will simply be repackaged in the Labour Court. A Corpo general Labour Court. A Corpo general operative told Socialist Worker, "The Corpo want to bring in more private sub-contractors. "There is big opposi-tion to this. We see it as paving the way for privatisation of Corpora-tion services."

IE management climbdown to pay or face an immediate shutdown of the railway. As one loco driver told Socialist Worker: 'We have been organising for two years and were able to force the issue. 'It was our willingness to take action that made the La-bour Court recommend CIE pay up, which it did.' This is a magnificent CITYBUS VICTORY Belfast busdrivers struck for two hours after they heard that a colleague had been dismissed. The strike was unofficial and happened after shop stewards toured around the city buses bringing them to a halt. The man was quickly re-instated after this mag-nificent gesture of solidarity.

Sr.

Support

Inside: Unionists keep the Tories in power-page Four Decline and fall of the Roman Empire: PAGE EIGHT

A TINY number of big-oted thugs are inflict-ing terror in Harryville, Ballymena. They have been stirred into action by the relation of the by the rhetoric of the Reverend Ian Paisley.

Heverend Ian Paisley. One of their anonymous leaders has told the local Ballymena paper that they are sure of 'private support from Unionist politicians'. Catholic families who live in the area have been petrol bombed, dragged from cars and beaten.

Hardened

People attending the local Mass are called "Fenian scum" by a three month old picket of hardened loyalists. "We've lived in Harryville for 30 years" said one Catho-lic family. "We can't take this terror. We've decided to go" The strongest party in the Ballymena area is the Demo-cratic Unionist Party led by

One of the Catholic homes in Ballymena wrecked by loyalist thugs

Ian Paisley. They have nine councillors in the town and have even dubbed the town 'the citadel of the DUP'. Some of Paisley's biggest rallies are held in the local town hell town hall.

For decades Paisley has been spewing out a message of hate against Catholics.

Curfews He claims that they "self ghettoised themselves out of a blindfolded loyalty to repub-licanism and Roman Catholicism" He has called for curfews in Catholic areas and for Sinn Fein to be banned. No wonder a group of hardened thugs have taken him at his word and embarked on a campaign to remove the few remaining Catholics from their area.

Murder

As the violence has esca-lated, Paisley has tried to dis-tance himself from his fol-table hunself from his for-lowers. This is nothing new. As far back as the mid six-ties, one Hugh McClean made the famous statement, "I am terribly sorry I ever heard of that man Paisley or decided to follow him" decided to follow him". He had just been charged with the Malvern St murder of two Catholic barmen.

of two Catholic barrnen. As usual Paisley distanced himself from the murder— but McClean knew where the message of hate came from. This time around there is even more direct evidence of connivance between Paisley and the thugs.

IINHI

VIOLENCE AT Harryville only seriously escalated after Baby Doc' Paisley told the neighbouring Catholic popula-tion of Dunloy that they were 'scum' and that they should expect 'dire consequences'. At first Paisley Junior was actively involved in organising the protests at Harryville. The pretext used was that they were in retaliation for the blocking of Orange marches.

Thugs

But there is no comparison between a parade that is de-signed to express superiority over Catholics and the rights of people from whatever faith to attend a religious building. Orangeism is not an 'expression of Protestant culture'. It is a movement that is built on bigotry and hate. The only differences between the thugs who attack Catho-lies at Harryville and Paisley is that they have not learnt the tactics of evading responsibility for their actions.

Sociali	IST V	VOI	(er
is you	r pa	pe	۲
I would like to join the Socia I would likecopies of So I would like the special intro for £5 I	ocialist Worker to	Sell I -	Buy it, ead it,
I would like to take out a sub	oscription: six mo	onths £9	sell it.

I would like to take out a subscription: six months £9
🖸 one year £18 🖬	2

Name	Join us!
	I Give your name Address	and address to
and a second of the second of the	your local seller
Phone	or phone (01)
Cheques/POs payable to Socialist Worker	872 2682 or
Send to: PO Box 1648, Dublin 8	return to form

Send to: PO Box 1648, Dublin 8 or PO Box 354, Tomb St Belfast

The bigots who feed off poverty

THE HOUSING estate of Bally-keel is where most of the loyal-ist protestors come from. Like many other Protestant estates, it suffers from dire poverty. A recent survey by the Hous-ing Executive showed that there was a male unemploy-ment rate of 50%. Paisley pretends to repre-ment rate of 50%. Paisley pretends to repre-sent poor Protestants against the 'fur coat' brigade'. But his method is to turn the anger and bitterness that comes with pov-erty against Catholic scape-roats

He often claims that Catholic areas—and even 'Catholic countries' in Europe—are grab-bing scarce resources from Protestants. But it is the Tories not Catholic workers who are responsi-ble for the run down of jobs and the introduction of the JSA. And they are only in power today because Trimble and Paisley continue to vote for them in Westminster. Paisley also helps the Tories by sowing divisions between workers everywhere he can.

Opposed

His thugs must be actively opposed at Harryville. If they manage to close down this small Catholic congrega-tion it will encourage every bigot to try the same thing in their area.

their area. The trade union movement organised huge demonstrations to demand peace two years ago. But over the last three months they have done nothing over Harryville. In the New Year, they should immediately call a mobilisation of their members to end the scandalous intimidation of people attending a religious people attending a religious people attending a religious ceremony. But they should also go fur-ther. From now on Paisley should be ostracised from any trade union event. Never again should union leaders welcome him onto worker protests at they did in the midst of the Compass strike. This man stands for one thing: sectarian hatred. Harryville shows exactly where that leads.